Rhodesia Begins To Feel Pinch Of Oil Embargo

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) —Rhodesians began to feel the pinch of the oil embargo against their government today. Rationing began of gasoline and diesel oil for passenger cars, trucks and buses.

Prime Minister Ian Smith waited until after Christmas to announce the measure Monday night.

Owners of private cars will get three to five gallsons of fuel per week. There is no restriction on diesel oil for commercial vehicles, but those using gasoline are limited to five to 10 gallons per week depending on size.

Doctors, veterinary surgeons, undertakers, diplomats and most government organizations operating transport for the public are exempt.

Britain announced the oil embargo against Smith's white minority government 10 days ago. Smith declared independence from Britain Nov. 11 after independence talks broke down over Britain's insistence that Thodesia's four million Africans be given a progressively better voice in the government. There are 220,000 whites in Rhodesia.

Most major oil producing countries joined the ban.

Eight Missing From Oil Rig

GRIMSBY, England (AP) — Aircraft, ships and divers searched in the North Sea today for eight men missing from a 5,600-ton oil rig which capsized 40 miles east of the Humber estuary.

Five of the rig's crewmen were known to have been killed in the disaster Monday. There were 19 survivors. Hopes of finding others were slim.

The rig, called the Sea Gem, was to have been moved two miles farther out to sea today after it tapped and capped a workable drilling. It's loss was a major setback in the British petroleum company's plan to pipe natural gas from under the sea to British industry by late 1967.

The Sea Gem made a sizable strike in September and the British government announced earlier this month that the oil field was large enough for commercial exploitation. The government is the majority shareholder in the company.

National Output Expected To Soar Again In 1966

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation enters its sixth year of boom in a few days and the National Planning Association estimates that national output in 1966 will soar to $716 billion, a $44-billion gain over 1965 production.

The actual rise could vary by as much as $10 billion, officials of the group said, because of the uncertain estimates for military spending.

The NPA's forecast is several billion dollars higher than most fiscal experts beluieved possible a few weeks ago, but many estimates now run $720 billion or more.

India Asks U.S. To Pay Freight On Food Grants

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Food Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam said today he has asked the United States to pay freight costs on emergency food grains it will ship to India.

Subramaniam, returning from a seven-day visit to the United States told newsmen he asked that India not be required to pay freight charges on shipments above its normal imports.

The food minister said he explained in Washington that India did not have sufficient foreign exchange to pay the additional shipping costs.

Vice President Makes Brief Stop In Tokyo

TOKYO (AP)—U.S. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived in Tokyo tonight on the first leg of a brief Asian tour and appealed to Japan for help and advice in "our common endeavors."

Humphrey planned an 18-hour stopover, en route to the inauguration of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos. During his Asian swing he will talk to leaders about Viet Nam but won't go there.

Met by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina, the vice president delivered an arrival statement which appeared to anticipate Japanese calls for no-holds-barred discussions of U.S. policy in Viet Nam, a touchy subject in Japan.

"The brevity of my stay should not obscure the importance we in the United States attach to frequent and frank consultation with your leaders," he said.

"Our goals and aspirations are much the same. We share the same deep commitments to peace, liberty and the prosperity of all peoples. We value your friendship, we look for your advice, we need your help in our common endeavors."

The last sentence could have been a veiled reference to the fact that the Japanese, though still pro-American, are reluctant allies where Viet Nam is concerned.

The Japanese Communists announced plans to mobilize 10,000 persons to march in front of the U. S. Embassy in protest against Humphrey's visit. Police ruled out any demonstrations at the airport.

Humphrey is the first vice president to visit Japan since 1958, when Richard M. Nixon came here.

Humphrey will be received by Emperor Hirohito and will have a two-hour talk with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Rome Shopping Area Disliked

ROME (AP) — Irate shopowners in an experimental pedestrian paradise in the heart of Rome threatened a blackout tonight and a lockout by the end of the year unless auto traffic is allowed back into the 10-block-long zone.

The city barred private cars from the central shopping zone for a 10-day trial starting Monday. By nightfall businessmen, motorists and the Roman press branded it a colossal failure.

A large area around the pedestrian island was hit by a chaotic traffic jam as cars were forced to detour through other streets just as narrow that normally are clogged with as much traffic as they can hold.

The business men's association of the famed Via Condotti, Via Frattina, Via del Babuino and Piazza di Spagna voted to turn off their shop signs and window lights tonight in protest. They said if the zone was not reopened to traffic they would close their shops.

Designer Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Frederick J. Kiesler, 75, sculptor, architect and theatrical designer, died Monday of a heart attack. Kiesler had designed theaters in New York City, Ellenville and Katonah, N.Y., and Startford, Conn. He was born in Vienna.

Farmer Resigns As CORE Head

NEW YORK (AP) — James Farmer is stepping down as national director of the Congress of Racial Equality next March to turn his attention to another phase of the civil rights program.

Farmer said Monday he will become director of the Center for Community Action Education, a national literacy project financed by federal and private funds.

He helped found CORE 23 years ago and has headed it since 1961.

Viet Cong Announces Four-Day Cease-Fire

Lunar Holiday Of Vietnamese Starts Jan. 20

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong tonight announced a four-day cease-fire in its war against South Vietnamese forces during the lunar New Year celebration next month. Meanwhile, the United States extended the moratorium on its air war against North Viet Nam for a fourth day.

A broadcast of the Communist Liberation Front radio said the Viet Cong would "stop attacking the puppet armed forces and government" from 12:01 a.m. Jan. 20 to midnight Jan. 23. The four-day festival, known as Tet, is celebrated as a national holiday in Viet Nam.

Air Lull Continues

The broadcast did not mention U.S. and other foreign forces fighting alonside the South Vietnamese. But conceivably it could apply to them since their military actions are coordinated with those of the Vietnamese troops even when they are not joint operations.

There was no immediate reaction from American or Vietnamese officials to the Viet Cong broadcast.

There also was no indication how long the American air pause would last or whether the Viet Cong announcement signified a peace reaction to the American moratorium. The guerrillas have suspended hostilities in the past during the Tet celebration.

The Saigon government in the past has dismissed Communist offers of a truce for Tet as propaganda. Nevertheless, a lull has usually developed on both sides during the holiday.

Return To Families

The Viet Cong broadcast said the offer would allow their "compatriots" to enjoy the Tet festival, and allow "military men and personnel of the puppet government to return to their villages, worship their ancestors and visit their family tombs."

The broadcast added an unexplained qualification to the offer. It said that "soldiers, officers and personnel of the puppet government who return to their villages must comply with the practical regulations set forth by the Liberation Front military command."

These "practical regulations" were not detailed.

When they offered a 12-hour Christmas truce, the Viet Cong said "enemy" troops must not carry weapons and must refrain from any spying.

In what appeared to be an escalation of the U.S. peace offensive, a U.S. spokesman said the United States also had suspended B52 raids on suspected Viet Cong strongholds in South Viet Nam and cut off air reconnaissance of the Communist north.

Raids Repulsed

North Viet Nam charged Monday that U.S. reconnaissance planes and warships intruded into its air space and territorial waters on Christmas day despite the allied truce.

The last air attack on the north was at 5:45 p.m. Christmas Eve, 15 minutes before the American 30-hour cease-fire for Christmas.

Although American planes stayed out of the northern skies, U.S. and South Vietnamese pilots flew 286 combat sorties against the Viet Cong in the south in the past 24 hours, spokesmen said.

Fighter-bombers played a key role in repulsing two predawn attacks by 500 guerrillas on the mountain militia post of Bu Prang, 30 miles northwest of Gia Nghia and 110 miles northeast of Saigon.

Fifty Viet Cong were reported killed while government casualties were described as light.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said he was unable to say whether the suspension in the attacks by the eight-engine Superfortresses was linked with the air lull in the north. The bombers last flew in from Guam Friday morning.

The big jets had been dropping their 750-pound bombs almost daily on jungle targets, some only a few miles from Saigon, since June 17. The fighter-bomber raids on North Viet Nam began Feb. 7.

In Washington there was an evident inclination to treat the

Sergeants Charged With Aiding Enemy

NAHA, Okinawa (UPI) —A top civilian lawyer experienced in dozens of court martials said today the military would have difficult time proving two U.S. Army sergeants aided an "enemy" during their two years of imprisonment by the Viet Cong.

The two men, Sgt. George E. Smith of Chester, W.Va., and Sgt. Claude McCLure of Chattanooga, Tenn., have been charged with "aiding the enemy" while captives of the Communist guerrillas. They were released last month by the Viet Cong in honor of anti-war demonstrations in the United States.

At a news conference in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, Nov. 30 they said they would quit the Army and join the campaign against U.S. involvement in Viet Nam when they got home.

Howard B. McClellan of Clayton, N.M., who has served as defense counsel in dozens of court martials, told UPI he believed the Army would have trouble proving the two aided an "enemy" since there has been no declaration of war in Viet Nam by the United States.

McClellan also commented that in his experience it was extremely unusual for the Army to state that the men have been charged before an order convening a court martial was issued.

The Army announced Monday that a preliminary investigation into the conduct of the two men warranted the charges that they prepared, furnished and delivered to the Viet Cong certain documents, statements and writing inimical to the interest of the United States.

However, it remains up to the commanding officer here—Lt. Gen. Albert E. Watson—to decide whether there is enough evidence to bring the charges to trial.

Meantime, the Army has refused further comment on the status of the case or the whereabouts of the sergeants. They were whisked to this island base from Korat, Thailand, on Dec. 7. The Army also said the men have been provided with legal counsel, but would not identify the lawyers.

If the pair are tried and convicted of aiding the enemy they could face the death penalty under Article 104 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. But a long series of reviews, including presidential approval, would be necessary before they could be executed.

War Is Costly For Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Viet Nam war would prove costly not only to President Johnson's Great Society program but also to his heavy Democratic majorities in Congress, a nonpartisan citizens group said today.

A report of the National Committee for an Effective Congress said the Democrats' hopes for holding the gains they made in the house in the 1964 elections are "gravely jeopardized by the Viet Nam war."

Continuing escalation in Viet Nam, the committee said, will have an impact on the administration's domestic legislative program by placing "a new and sharper knife in the hand of the economy bloc."

The committee, which supports what it regards as qualified candidates of both parties for the Senate and the House, said its chief criterion in 1961 was to reduce "Goldwaterism as a significant factor in American politics."

Fords Are Hosts To 400 Guests

NEW YORK (AP)—"Watch the Fords go by" was the game played in the Delmonico Hotel lobby here Monday night as more than 400 well-heeled and well-known persons made their way to 24-year-old Anne Ford's prewedding party.

Early in the evening, the father of the bride-to-be Henry Ford II, led the parade. Acompanying him was Anne's mother, Anne Mc Donnell Ford, from whom he was divorced last year.

There also were vivacious blonde Cristina, whom he married in February, and the bridegroom, Giancarlo Uzielli.

The couple will be married in a civil ceremony this afternoon at Mrs. Ford's Fifth Avenue apartment.

The family shied away from photographers and raced for the elevators. Twelve security men were assigned to protect the privacy of the party — one of the most heavily guarded parties in the hotel's history.

Premier Church In England Now 900 Years Old

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II placed a bouquet of red roses on a small altar in Westminster Abbey today to inaugurate the year-long celebration of the 900th anniversary of Britain's premier church.

The abbey was consecreated on Dec. 28, 1065, Holy Innocents Day. Edward the Confessor, who had ordered it built, died soon after without seeing the completed structure.

Since its consecreation as a Benedictine monastery, the abbey has been the coronation church of all of England's monarchs but two. Elizabeth was married there in 1947 and crowned there in 1953. Thirteen British kings and five queens are buried there.

Notables Attend

It was to honor the abbey's builder that the queen took the roses today from a cushion carried by the abbey's senior chorister and laid them on the altar near the marble tomb of King Edward.

As the queen arrived with her husband, Prince Philip, her sister, Princess Margaret, and other members of the royal family, a ceremonial prelude was played on the great abbey organ. It was composed for the occasion by Sir Arthur Bliss, master of the queen's music.

Resplendently garbed officials took part in the stately ceremonial. The Archbishops of Canterbury, York, Wales and Dublin were on hand with the Primus of Scotland and representatives of other churches in Britain and overseas.

Also attending were the speaker of the House of Commons, the Lord Chancellor, members of the government and of both houses of Parliament, the lord mayor of London, diplomats and Commonwealth high commissioners.

Grime Removed

For the anniversary, workmen gave the abbey its first real face lift in its 900 years. Plans for the million-dollar project began at the time of Queen Elizabeth's coronation 12 years ago.

Tons of eroding soot and grime were removed from molded and carved decorations. Gold leaf and paint was renewed. The sandstone walls were restored to their original white.

Stephen Dykes-Bower, the prominent architect who was in charge of the restoration program, said: "The view of the abbey on entering the west door is no longer one of somber gloom but of lightness and radiance — a symphony of white stone, gray marble, guilding and color."

Italy's Foreign Minister Quits

ROME (AP)—Amintore Fanfani, president of the U.N. General Assembly, resigned today as Italy's foreign minister after a storm of criticism over his role in handling a purported North Viet Nam peace feeler which Hanoi disavowed.

The resignation of the fiery little foreign minister came only a week before a special session of the Foreign Affairs Commission of the Chamber of Deputies called to question his part as middleman in the purported peace maneuver.

Fanfani made it clear he still wants to face the commission and answer its questions.

He asked that his resignation become effective Jan. 6, one day after the extraordinary commission hearing, so that he can appear before his critics while still foreign minister.

Agencies Urged To Help Enforce Civil Rights Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agencies have been urged to take the initiative in enforcing Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act — the provision that forbids racial discrimination in federally assisted programs and permits the government to cut off funds where discrimination exists.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach told 21 agencies that the government should seek out illegal discrimination and try to end it rather than wait for complaints before acting.

Rainstorms Pound Pacific Northwest

By The Associated Press

Strong winds, heavy rain and snow pounded broad sections of the Pacific Northwest today.

Gale warnings were posted by the U.S. Weather Bureau from Northern California north to the Pugent Sound.

Heavy rain, with winds of 50 m.p.h. and higher swept coastal sections, with biggest amounts in Northern California and southern Oregon which were hit by the damaging floods last December.

In other parts of the nation, severe cold stung wide areas from Colorado and Montana to the Great Lakes region and in northern Maine.

Barges Break Loose

Nearly six inches of rain splashed Cape Blanco, Ore., and more than three inches fell in a six-hour period in Brookings, Ore., Monday night. The Weather Bureau said heavy rain was expected to continue in northeastern California through Wednesday.

Two large barges, with no one aboard, were torn from a tug and wallowed in stormy seas 30 to 40 miles off the central Oregon coast. An oil company's drilling platform, 200 feet square, rode out 45-foot waves 25 miles off the northern Oregon coast. Some 40 men were on the barge-like platform. Winds at the time were reported to be 105 m.p.h.

A blizzard struck in the Blue Mountains of northeastern Oregon and blizzards closed Interstate 5 in southern Oregon and U.S. 97 in Northern California. Dust storms at Baker and La Grande, in eastern Oregon, changed into snow storms.

Wet, heavy snow fell in western Washington and there was much drifting in some areas. More than foot of snow covered areas in central and northeastern Washington. Power was restored in largely rural Mason County Monday afternoon, ending a 13-hour county-wide blackout.

There were two storm-related deaths. An 8-year-old boy was injured fatally when the car in which he was riding skidded across the center line of a snow-covered highway north of Seattle and crashed into a truck. James F. Sopp, 28, of St. Helens, Ore., was electrocuted when strong winds blew the radio aerial he was repairing into a high voltage line.

Temperatures were below zero again this morning in parts of Colorado, Montana, Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois and northern Maine. The mercury failed to reach above zero Monday in parts of northern Minnesota. Top reading was -8 at Roseau, Minn.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 12 below zero at Hibbing, Minn., to 70 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mink Research Unit Ordered

A new research and teaching center in poultry science will be completed at Michigan State University next summer.

Contracts were approved by MSU trustees this month to begin construction on the $400,000 facility on the south campus of the University farms, East Lansing. Construction is to be completed June 1, 1966.

Dr. Howard C. Zindel, chairman of MSU's Poultry Science Department points out that the University has long been a leader in poultry science. A regional poultry laboratory of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has been located on the East Lansing campus for years.

Dr. Zindel said, "This is more than just a relocation of a poultry plant. It represents the forward progress of animal science in a space age to meet many rapid and dramatic changes in the poultry industry."

Upper Peninsula people are interested in the change because mink was included in the re-location said, Joseph L. Heirman, Delta County Extension agent. "In the planning stage it was not certain whether mink would be included," said Heirman. "The Upper Peninsula Mink Producers Association put in a strong recommendation to continue mink research at MSU.

"There are only four or five universities that carry on research in mink in the United States. While the commercial poultry enterprise is not too important in the Upper Peninsula at this date, there is room for expansion. The poultry business is highly competitive and the latest in research must be followed to remain healthy in the business."

Four hundred animals of 46 types have been collected for the new Bremen, Germany, Zoo, which opened last September.

Conservation Dept. Innovates

Radio Helps Forest Work

Two-way mobile radios play a major part in forest fire detection and suppression in Michigan. One hundred and eighty-five mobile sets and 23 station sets are assigned to the Upper Peninsula, according to the U. P. office of the Michigan Department of Conservation. Mobile sets are installed in moving equipment such as airplanes, cars, boats, trucks, and tractors and also in fire towers, and portable packsets are used by fire officers on foot.

The Department of Conservation pioneered the use of the two-way radio in fire towers in the United States. The original sets were of AM frequency and were designed and built by Department radio engineers, as there were none on the commercial market in the late 30's. The equipment was changed to FM sets in the early 40's.

Today, the radio operates on three channels to allow for wider use. One channel is used for fire, one for law and the other for traffic for parks, forestry, game and fish, etc. A car equipped with a two - way radio may call stations, towers and other mobile equipment. All of the law and fire cars and trucks, etc., now can switch to fire or law channels and talk on either.

It is hoped that soon all will be able to communicate on all three channels. All department radio facilities are an integral part of the national and state Civilian Defense Organization. Each of the district and field office station sets have emergency power plants to operate their radios in case of electric power failure and the latest mobile sets are interchangeable. When a driver arrives at a fire, he unloads his tractor and plow or bulldozer; then removes the small mobile radio set from the truck and places it on the tractor. If he has to proceed on foot he can use the mobile radio as a portable packset. The radio installation on the tractor has a separate public address system that enables the tractor operator to hear the radio traffic over the noise of the running tractor and also to hear the transmission while he is away from the tractor. It weighs about 13 pounds.

The three patrol boats that operate in law enforcement on the Great Lakes have two-way radios, sonic depth finders, radio direction finders and ship-to-shore telephones which enable the crew on the boat to communicate with the U. S. Coast Guard and the U. S Weather Bureau on a marine frequency.

The Department of Conservation forestry survey crews also use the two-way "Voice Commander" while running survey lines on state forests. Some station sets are also tied in with the Michigan State Police and several U. S. Forest Service towers use department radios along with their own.

Regional Radio Technician Mel Ploennies, Marquette, supervises the installation and maintenance of all two-way radio equipment used by the department in the Upper Peninsula. He has three radio technicians working for him, Jack Nashland, Baraga, Robert Belanger, Marquette, and Rex Beadle, Newberry.

Teachers To Meet

More than 100 Upper Peninsula educators will confer Saturday, Jan. 8, at Negaunee to discuss teacher salaries.

Serving as consultants for the conference will be Dr. Stanley Hecker of Michigan State University; Tom Northey, Michigan Education Association Research Division; and Kai Erickson, MEA salary consultant.

Youth Fined And Jailed As Reckless Driver

An Escanaba youth, 18, who drove at speeds up to 100 miles an hour early today in an effort to elude police, today is beginning a five-day mandatory jail sentence as part of the penalty for reckless driving.

Peter G. Benson of 724 S. 10th St. entered a plea of guilty in Municipal Court and was ordered to pay a fine of $100, plus $5 court costs, spend five days in jail — and serve 10 days more if he fails to pay the fine.

Responding to a complaint at 5:03 a.m. of the presence of a prowler, a car drove away as police drove up. They gave chase and stopped the fleeing automobile one and one-half miles west of 23rd St. on U.S. 2-41.

The officers reported that Benson drove at speeds up to 100 miles an hour; that he ran five stop signs, two traffic lights and one blinking red light at "extremely high speeds and with complete disregard of life and property."

Escanaba Men Given 1 Year In Reformatory

Two Escanaba young men found guilty of the armed robbery of a Marinette gas station were sentenced Monday afternoon by Marinette Circuit Judge Arnold Murphy to serve one year in the Wisconsin reformatory at Green Bay.

They are Ronald F. Richer, 24, of 632 N. 19th St., and John R. Valiquette, 20, of 1331 1st Ave. N., Escanaba.

Richer and Valiquette were arrested by Escanaba police after the robbery of the gas station at Marinette and the theft of an automobile in Escanaba. The car stolen in Escanaba was driven to Marinette and used in the hold-up of the station.

Judge Murphy in sentencing the men to the reformatory noted that with good conduct it might be possible for them to gain release before the end of the year's sentence.

Wisconsin statute provides up to three years in prison for robbery armed. Clifford Roach, the Marinette Circuit Court probation and parole officer, recommended that because a gun had been used in the robbery the men should not be placed on probation.

Richer and Valiquette had pleaded guilty to the charge on Dec. 10. Their sentence Monday afternoon is one of the last criminal cases to come before Judge Murphy, who is retiring Friday after 36 years on the bench.

The Escanaba men admitted they drove away an automobile in Escanaba owned by Emery Pellant of 302 Lake Shore Drive. They abandoned the car in Marinette after the robbery but were traced here because of the car and were arrested by Escanaba police and turned over to Marinette authorities.

The Consolidated Service Station on Hall Ave. was held up at 4:20 a. m. on Dec. 3.

Marinette police said that Valiquette drove the car and Richer entered the station and at pistol point held up and robbed attendant James Homa, of $231. The stolen auto was abandoned and the men returned to Escanaba in Valiquette's car.

After their arrest here the men waived extradition and were returned to Marinette for trial.

CRUMBLING CAPITOL—The sagging West Front of the Capitol in Washington is shored up to prevent threatened collapse. The oldest portion of the building, it has been crumbling away bit by bit for years. Suggestion of Capitol architect J. George Stewart, viewing the shaky facade, is to extend the building by putting up a new West Front duplicating the existing wall.

Cold, Hunger Cut Animal Numbers

BERKELEY, Calif. — A young squirrel's fancy turns in the springtime because that is when the days are beginning to grow longer and more light is entering its eyes.

The same is true for many other animals. Expose them to long periods of light in the middle of winter and they will reproduce then.

The reason, a Michigan State University professor of physiology reports, is that light signals reach the brain and cause it to produce two nerve hormones.

These nerve hormones, said Dr. Joseph Meites, set off a chain reaction. They reach the pituitary, the so-called master gland, and cause it to release two other hormones. These hormones, in turn, cause the sex glands of the birds to enlarge and produce sex hormones.

Light, Dr. Meites told the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is only one of several environmental factors which activate the hypothalamus, a small group of nerve cells at the base of the brain.

If you are cold, hungry, growing, stressed, pregnant or subject to many other internal and external conditions, whether you are consciously aware of them or not, your hypothalamus is kept informed and reacts accordingly.

Dr. Meites, reviewing the findings made in his MSU laboratory and by other researchers, described some of the factors that have a marked effect on the hypothalamus. One of them is hunger, he said.

The hypothalamus of a starving rat, he has found, cuts back on its production of the neurohormone that causes release of growth hormone by the pituitary. As a result, the animal's growth is stunted.

Starvation in rats, he found, also results in a decrease in the brain's production of neurohormones that release gonadotropic hormones. This is why underfed rats are not sexually active.

Light, however, affects the hypothalamus in an opposite way, Dr. Meites learned. Rats fed half of their normal ration, he found, remain sexually active of they are kept under constant illumination.

Temperature also affects the hypothalamus. Cold, Dr. Meites has found, sets up a chain reaction in which the hypothalamus produces a neurohormone; the neurohormone causes the pituitary to release the hormone called thyrotropin; the thyrotropin activates the thyroid; the thyroid produces the hormone thyroxin; and the thyroxin increases the body's rate of metabolism (cell building.)

Scientific Miracle

Nothing has been more impressive in demonstration of man's growing conquest of his environment than the meeting 185 miles from the earth of the Gemini space ships 6 and 7.

The first airplane was launched only 62 years ago and it stayed in the air only 12 seconds. It took a long time—until World War II—for aviation to develop the sophistication of jet propulsion and bring flying to its present efficiency.

Space travel is even newer and developing at a much faster pace than aviation did, although the problems it must solve are immensely more complex.

When the Russians and our Col. John Glenn made the first orbits of the earth we had broken out of its atmosphere into its galaxy and taken the first major step toward interplanetary travel.

Now we have taken another long step by two weeks of orbiting to show that men can remain healthy and mentally nimble to carry out tasks in space over extended periods. And we have sent up a second space ship to join it; to come within 6 feet of it and to circle with it for 6 hours on a 25,000 mile course at a speed of 5 miles a second.

If we did not live in an age of computers it would not have been possible for the National Aviation and Space Authority to have sent up Gemini 6 to join Gemini 7 and prove the feasibility of contacts and joint operations in space.

Because there were only one or two brief periods each day when Gemini 7 was in useful relationship to Gemini 6 on its launch pad at Cape Kennedy in Florida, it was necessary to compute exactly when the big Titan II rocket should be fired. It was scheduled to blast off at 26 seconds after 8:37 a.m. on Dec. 15 and it lifted off on schedule to the second.

Gemini 6 was sent into a lower orbit than Gemini 7 so that it moved at higher speed to overtake it, but there were corrective bursts to be fired to change the course of Gemini 6 and to reduce its closing speed. One of the computers at the space center in Texas made the calculations for the corrective maneuvers.

The computer had been prepared for a year for this task, its memory system crammed with all the incredibly complex information needed for orbital flight calculations and the equations worked out by the mathematicians to equate these data to the rendezvous in space.

As the two Gemini space craft sent their orbital information to the tracking stations around the world and it was fed back to Houston the computer delivered in micro-seconds the orders that human calculation would have taken too long to complete. It changed Gemini 6's flight plan constantly by ordering new burns and giving timing, strength and direction.

★ ★ ★

This is not an improved way of controlling force in a new environment, it is a new way of doing it. Inevitably it will have a strong influence upon our more pedestrian living. We have progressed in centuries from walking to powered flight and now we can maneuver in space and the most complex part of the achievement is the system of controls and communications that has been developed to accomplish it. Man made it and man operates it, but it reaches out far beyond his manual capacity to gather in a great taped science of orbital knowledge and to make it instantly available at his command, along with the calculations that he needs to make it applicable to his problem—moving at a velocity of 17,535 miles per hour.

The amazing feat creates a public wonder that often expresses itself in "If they can do that they can do anything!"

This is not so. Our scientists are finally learning the makeup of nature. They can change it a bit—as in the transmutation of elements—but mostly they work within its limits. Some of these limits are new and strange to the layman so the progress of technology mystifies. We accept the fact of space travel because there are smiling Tom Stafford and Wally Schirra and Frank Borman and James Lovell splashing down from their missions to prove it. But the full implications of the knowledge explosion are harder to accept and apply.

DEAD LETTER LAWS

Over a period of 42 years, the crime committed most often in Washington, D. C., was selling ice cream cones.

It seems that in 1921, as a health measure, the sale of ice cream in less-than-pint containers was forbidden. Yet, through the years, millions of less-than-pint cones were sold in brazen defiance of the law. They were licked in plain sight by residents, tourists, Congressmen, perhaps even Supreme Court justices. Not until 1963 did Congress finally end the scandal by repealing this obsolete law.

In Elko, Nevada, crime ran even more rampant. A 1918 ordinance, passed during the great flu epidemic, required everybody to wear a flu mask in public places. Not until 1964 did the city council let people breathe easier by revoking the ordinance.

Hundreds of such laws remain on the books in various communities around the country. How does this happen?

The reason is simple: there is far more incentive to put a law on the books than to take it off. As the original stimulus for a law fades away, people gradually lose interest in it. No one obeys, no one complains, no one prosecutes.

Yet, these dead letter laws may do real harm. For one thing, they may breed disrespect for law itself.

For another thing, they may give law enforcement officials too much leeway. If not probable, it is at least possible that a person might suddenly be prosecuted for doing something which he has been doing, in all innocence, for years.

Accordingly, as part of a broad drive to modernize criminal law, bar associations and other attorney organizations are trying to clean out these legal anachronisms.

It is not an easy job. Some laws are plainly useless. But others, while rarely invoked, may still have a useful deterrent effect. Still others might represent a kind of gentleman's agreement whereby the community salutes a moral standard in principle while ignoring it in practice.

But it is a job well worth doing. No law should remain on the books for no better reason than that it has been forgotten.

Actor Lemmon Good Bet In '68 Producer Too

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Acting isn't enough for Jack Lemmon, so he's formed his own production company to make movies.

His organization, Jalem Productions (an anagram of his name), will film "Cool Hand Luke" next year, a story about a Florida chain gang in which Lemmon will not appear.

Jack is enormously wealthy, among the top ten box office stars, and can pick and choose his roles. Why then does he seek the added burden and problems of becoming a producer?

"I guess it's a normal drive and compulsion to be more closely involved with pictures," Lemmon said.

More Creative

"The production end of movies is more creative and less interpretive than acting. The producer assumes complete responsibility for almost every facet of his film.

"You choose the property, the cast, oversee the script and shape the whole feeling of the movie. That's very exciting work."

For the time being Jack is content to star in Billy Wilder's new comedy, "The Fortune Cookie," in which he plays a photographer flattened by a football player on the sidelines of a professional game.

As in other movies, he is free to interpret his role, adding frills and touches here and there. But Lemmon hopes to operate on a larger scale as a producer.

Other stars have followed the same pattern with varying degrees of success—Burt Lancaster, John Wayne, Kirk Douglas, Rock Hudson and Jerry Lewis.

Well Qualified

Lemmon, more than most, appears well qualified. He's a conservative Yankee with few illusions of owning, say, MGM.

"I'm keeping my company small and efficient," he explained. "Our headquarters are at Columbia Pictures where we have a contract for four pictures.

"We'll make all our deals carefully, and we won't make the mistake of putting all our eggs in one basket. Hopefully, our pictures will deal with stories of substance; things we can be proud of. And, naturally, I'll appear as an actor in some of them.

"I won't let these other activities interfere with my acting. Which brings me to another point, someday when the public wakes up and says 'what ever happened to Jack Lemmon?' I'll still be in the business as a producer."

Headaches Worth It

All the headaches that go with producing a movie—the taxes, balance sheets, temperamental actors, location problems—are worth it, Jack believes.

"My concern and involvement with pictures has increased with every movie I've made," he explained.

"At this stage of the game acting just doesn't fulfill some of the basic urges I have to create. I happen to think that production may be the answer for me."

The concept of a company or its foundation matching their employes contributions to their alma maters now has 300 companies pouring more than $11 million annually into education.

Muskegon Gets Big Conventions

MUSKEGON (UPI) — Conventions and events featuring bowling balls, bibles, beauties and other themes are expected to attract more than a half-million visitors to Muskegon in 1966.

The season for visitors will be launched with the Michigan State Men's Bowling Tournament next month and will reach its peak in July when the annual Seaway Festival, which attracts about 300,000 persons, will be held.

The Michigan State Men's Bowling Tournament will be held weekends starting in January and will run through May. It will include participation by about 10,000 Michigan bowlers.

Other bowling conventions scheduled are the Lions Club state tournament, 500 players, March 5-6; Michigan State Eagles Auxiliary Bowling, March 19 - April 24, five weekends, about 300 players, and the National Falcon Polish bowling tournament, April 22-24, and April 29-May weekends, about 650 players.

The Muskegon Area Development Council reports that 36 major events and conventions already have been lined up for next year.

One of the big ones is the annual Miss Michigan Beauty Pageant, held July 28-July 1, which annually lures about 10,000 persons to the Walker Arena.

Four religious conventions and several fraternal gatherings also have been booked.

The Ford Philpot Religious Crusade, which meets May 22-June 5, is expected to draw more than 50,000 persons. The Catholic Daughters of America meet April 22-23, with about 300 expected; the West Michigan Diocesan convention of the Episcopal Church is expected to attract over 1,000 May 17-18; the Laymen's Home Missionary Movement, about 250 on May 29-30.

Among other conventions are the Eagles state convention, 2,000 on June 8-11; Veterans of World War I, about 1,200, July 14-17; National Motorcycle Hill Climb, Aug. 7, about 15,000 and the Knights Templar of Michigan, 4,000, on June 1-4.

The slightest sign that moderate Republicans might repeat their irresolution of 1964 could be fatal to their new hopes. That is why a substantial Romney triumph in 1966 could be followed by key endorsements for 1968 within a matter of days or weeks.

★ ★ ★

In case they have forgotten how to move, GOP moderates have before them the striking history of the Eisenhower movement in the important months leading to his presidential nomination in 1952.

On Oct. 15, 1950, 21 months before nominating time, the then Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York used the Meet the Press radio-television forum for a strong endorsement of Gen. Eisenhower.

This was the real touch-off, though a bit earlier Pennsylvania's Gov. James Duff had, with less notice, said "Ike is my man."

By late June of 1951, a top Dewey lieutenant had virtually pledged the 96-vote New York delegation to Eisenhower. (The actual convention tally for the state gave the general 92 to 4 for Robert A. Taft, his close competitor nationwide.)

All through the summer of 1951, Republican governors, senators and congressmen trooped to Paris to see "Ike" in his NATO headquarters. Among them was Massachusetts' Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, who by Nov. 15 had been named national campaign manager for the general.

In September that year, Dewey and Duff held a major strategy meeting in Washington, drawing in several other top Republicans.

A few weeks later, at the annual governors' conference held in Gatlinburg, Tenn., Dewey engineered an Eisenhower endorsement by seven of the nation's 25 Republican governors.

One of the seven, Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire announced at that conference that Eisenhower's name would be tossed into the New Hampshire primary which kicked off the 1952 campaign.

Even Harold Stassen was quoted as backing "Ike," though he later denied it and lapsed into another of his own futile campaigns.

On Jan. 6, 1952, Lodge announced formally that Eisenhower's name would be on the New Hampshire ballot in March. Next day, the general issued a statement that kept the rug under his backers.

Ten days later, at a San Francisco meeting of the GOP National Committee, Eisenhower was represented by a tough squad of professionals under Lodge's command. The game was on in full, after a long and very resolute preparatory drive which had enlisted from the outset some of the party's brightest, most influential stars.

For today's moderates, ashamed of virtually sitting the last one out, the lesson of 1950-52 is plain enough.

LAND SLID BOTH WAYS

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Paul J. Bell and Robert E. Travis are almost equally popular in Marion's Third Ward.

In 1963, Travis, 33, beat Bell, 34, for the ward's City Council seat by one vote. This year Bell, a Democrat, challenged Republican Travis for the post.

Unofficial returns gave Bell a 15-vote edge. But a recount changed that.

Bell still won, but 788 to 787.

As far back as the summer of 1924, Escanaba citizens were urging that the city employ a recreation director and asking that the city council provile an annual budget of $3,500 for the purpose.

This was revealed as City Clerk Carl E. Anderson dug into old files preparatory to painting the walls of the city clerk's vault. It was not until 12 years later in August of 1937 that the plan was effected.

New York Bus Strike Due On New Year's Day

NEW YORK (UPI) —Members of the Transport Workers Union voted unanimously Sunday to strike city's bus and subway system on New Year's Day.

More than 5,000 transit workers crowded into Manhattan Center and, cheering, approved the strike plans of union chief Michael J. Quill.

Meanwhile, Joseph E. O'Grady, chairman of the city transit authority, announced he would retire sometime after the authority's labor problems are settled.

O'Grady said his decision was not related to the threatened bus and subway strike. He said he had informed Mayor Robert Wagner of his intended retirement last summer.

Ann Landers

Mothers, Heed This Warning

Dear Ann Landers: Your column hits everybody sooner or later. I got mine in the letter from the grandma whose daughter left her three-year-old playing — unattended — in the bathtub.

Here is my story:

I left my three little girls in the tub while I went to give the infant his bottle. The two older girls climbed out and turned the faucet on. A few minutes later the older one came to tell me that her little sister was "asleep with her face down in the water" and wouldn't wake up.

We lived two blocks from the police station. Within minutes the police were on the scene. They rushed the child to the hospital, but it was too late.

I can still hear the voices at the funeral. "She should have known better." "What a foolish person to have left those children alone."

Ann, if you will print my letter and save just one mother the agony I went through it will be worth the heartache I am still suffering as I put these words down on paper. Thank you.—MRS. E.

Dear Mrs. E.: Here it is and I can add nothing except my devout wish that all mothers who read your letter will remember what they have read.

Dear Ann Landers: The cleaning woman who has worked for me for six years is an alcoholic. Please don't send me your booklet. I am not interested in curing her. When Ruby is stoned she cleans the house better than my other cleaning woman did when she was sober. As far as I am concerned, she can drink all she wants to. What I want to know is how I can get Ruby to quit drinking a half fifth of expensive Scotch every time she cleans the house.

I am sure she is not used to such fine liquor and when she buys the stuff herself she gets a very cheap brand. Would it be wrong for me to buy Ruby some cheap booze and tell her to leave the good stuff alone?

Don't suggest that I lock the liquor cabinet. I did this once and she asked for the key so she could clean it thoroughly. So you see she is a smart old lush. Thanks.—STYMIED

Dear Sty: Obviously, she's a lot smarter than the lady she works for.

Hasn't it occurred to you to keep the liquor cabinet locked and clean it yourself?

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: I told my husband that the very next time he walks into the house with unexpected dinner guests I'm going to put on my coat before they sit down and march them right over to a restaurant. He threw three extras at me last night and I was embarrassed to death.

I am a very good cook, Ann, but I am no magician. I can't stretch a four-pound roast and a pound and a half of green beans to feed 10 people.

My husband says the salesmen he brings home are so hungry for home cooking that they'd rather have a fried egg in our house than a steak in a restaurant.

Please, oh please, tell me what to do about this.—SICK OF SURPRISES

Dear Sick: Your husband gave you the answer. Fry em an egg and don't make any apologies.

If your husband objects to cackle-berries for dinner tell him to bring along extra T-bones when he brings those salesmen who are so hungry for home cooking.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50c in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Pooch Pensioned

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Sarge, a four-footed police lieutenant, has retired because of advancing age. He's 10.

A Doberman Pinscher, Sarge was promoted to lieutenant by the City Council in 1962 after he captured a robbery-kidnap suspect. But a year later, he broke both front paws when he misinterpreted a command and leaped 35 feet from a building roof while helping to investigate a burglary. He recovered from his injuries and returned to duty.

Ford Launches Safety Drive

DEARBORN (UPI)—The Ford Motor Co. Monday began a nationwide safety campaign to encourage drivers to develop a personal safe-driving program.

The firm planned a 12-page insert in this week's Time magazine and has scheduled a 16-page special supplement on safety to run in 25 U.S. newspapers Jan. 16.

The supplement features auto safety tips, including a 30-point check list of "do's and don'ts for the good driver."

Henry Ford II, head of the auto firm, said each person has different driving habits and these must be cultivated to bring the best driving behavior.

"Action starts with thoughts and now, as never before, our country needs creative thinking and coordinated action to reduce the accident rate and improve driving conditions," Ford said.

"This is not a job for one person, one company, or any single group. Traffic safety is everybody's business. It must be a cooperative effort," he added.

A national truck rodeo champion lists the mistakes made by most drivers and suggests means of improving individual skills in the Ford articles. The head of the New York State thruway patrol also lists the most common and serious errors made by drivers on superhighways.

Other items in the supplement, entitled "A Positive View of Good Driving Habits," include a recommended auto safety check list and a driving instructor's advice on the importance of driver training programs.

Boy, 12, Drowns At Kalamazoo As Thin Ice Breaks

KALAMAZOO (UPI)—Robert Dillar, 12, Kalamazoo, drowned Sunday after he fell through ice which had formed on a lake in the southwest part of the city.

A companion, Richard Fish, 15, also of Kalamazoo, also fell through the ice but was rescued by Dr. John Neerkin, who rushed from his nearby home after he saw the boys were in trouble.

Dr. Neerkin and Fish were reported in good condition at Borgess Hospital. The doctor had fallen into the icy water while rescuing Fish.

Authorities still were searching for Dillar's body.

Wood Industry Won't Fly Away To Big Cities

DULUTH, Minn.—The wood-using industries of northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan probably won't shift to metropolitan areas, but it may some day move its products in much different ways.

Helicopters with enough muscle to handle logs could get into the business in the future, wood chips in a slurry might be transported long distances through pipelines. These were just two ideas reviewed during the Dec. 14-15 session in Duluth of the Northern Great Lakes Resource Development Committee. The ideas were suggested by Dean Quinney, Lake States Forestry Experiment Station in Duluth.

Another possibility is the unit train — made up solely of cars carrying logs from one central loading point to an ultimate destination, with no switching or rerouting in between.

This unit train concept was described by Edmund A. Nightingale, University of Minnesota. The idea has been common in iron mining.

Concentration Yards

Quinney noted, "This would mean a concentration of loading points to increase hauling efficiency." "If workable," he said, "The unit train could mean sharply reduced transportation rates — important in an industry where transportation may account for as much as 40 per cent of the cost at the using site."

Such ideas as the unit train, multiple car shipments, and one-line hauls have allowed other regions farther out from markets to compete with the Northern Great Lakes Region in some wood products.

"Part of our problem with wood bolts," according to Quinney, "is the expense of moving it over two or three railroad lines. Moving wood chips through pipelines in a slurry may seem like a blue sky idea," he said, "but Canadian companies have invested $1 million in studies of such innovations."

Created By Needs

He continued, "Our transportation systems were developed in response to man's expectations at the time. If in 1900 we had possessed the vision of 40 years ahead, many of our transportation routes wouldn't have been laid out as they were."

Both speakers stressed the value-weight relationship in studying transportation. With high value-low weight products such as electronics, transportation may account for less than 1 per cent of the product cost, just as value per unit of weight is less, transportation cost as a percentage goes up. With aspen pulp, transportation can easily account for $3 or $4 of the $12 per cord cost delivered at the mill yard. With hardwood or veneer, the transportation proportion decreases.

Wisconsin Highway Commissioner Gus Bakke described the development of systems in that state, pointing out that proximity to major highways is a major force attracting new industry.

Representatives of Minnesota and Michigan noted the importance of highway development for northern portions of their states and said highway construction has a tendency aways to be "catching up," that it rarely seems possible to direct highway development toward influencing an activity. Instead, construction is designed to meet existing needs.

Highway Beautification

Lawrence Casazza, of the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, described the new Highway Beautification Act which controls outdoor advertising and junkyards along the interstate and primary highway systems and provides for landscaping and scenic enhancement. Provisions of the act include:

1. Except for advertising on premises and in commercial or industrial areas, billboards are prohibited within 660 feet of the edge of the right-of-way along the interstate and primary systems.

2. Signs lawfully existing as of Sept. 1, 1965, are not required to be removed until July 1, 1970.

3. Control area for junkyards is 1,000 feet from the edge of the right-of-way. This control is to be achieved by Jan. 1, 1968. Effective control includes screening through use of plantings, fences, or other means.

4. States would be allocated an amount equal to 3 per cent of apportioned federal-aid highway funds for landscape and roadside development and for scenic preservation and enhancement.

Wages in the United States are highest in the Pacific Coast states.

IRON MOUNTAIN—Bruce Guild, superintendent of the Iron Mountain public schools since 1954 and a veteran of 40-years in the school system, has announced that he plans to retire at the end of the current school year. Guild, who joined the Iron Mountain schools as a chemistry and physics instructor, had requested only a one-year contract from the Board of Education in negotiations in June.

★ ★ ★

IRONWOOD — The Copper Peak Fund raising drive is nearing the goal of $46,000 for the local share of developing a $296,000 ski flying hill. William Johnson, drive co-ordinator, said advertising for bids will begin in about two weeks and, bearing complications, the project should be completed in about a year.

★ ★ ★

MARQUETTE — The Marquette County Board of Supervisors has instructed the County Airport Committee to "proceed with plans for the extension of runways and other necessary improvements so as to accommodate jet air service." Just what action will be taken is not clear, but presumably the group will draft plans for financing what is expected to be a million-dollar project. Cost to the county will be about one-fourth of the total. State and federal aid would pay the rest.

★ ★ ★

SAULT STE. MARIE—Charles R. Brown has resigned from the City Commission because of a six-month business assignment in Detroit. No successor has been named.

★ ★ ★

HOUGHTON — Ground has been broken here for the first coed dormitory at Michigan Tech University. In brief remarks, Dr. R. L. Smith, Tech president, noted that in 1941 only two girls were enrolled. There are 230 now he said. The new building, which will also include the food service section, will cost $1.6 million.

★ ★ ★

IRON MOUNTAIN—Sighting of a mockingbird highlighted the annual Christmas bird court of the Northland Audubon Chapter. The bird, which usually lives in the south and eastern parts of the United States, was seen in a north side residential area of Iron Mountain. Altogether, the group counted 2,464 birds of 25 different species. Most common bird with the English sparrow with 1,200.

★ ★ ★

MARQUETTE—Dr. Edward Pfau, dean of Northern Michigan University's school of education, has resigned to accept a position as a director of the planning division of the Michigan Dept. of Education. Pfau will begin his new duties Jan. 31. He had been dean of education at Northern since Aug. 1960.

Spirit Of Unity Grows In GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Republican leaders, looking to the November elections, are taking issue with President Johnson for his Viet Nam strategy, domestic spending programs and enforcement of the voting rights law.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon finds the administration's overall conduct has resulted in growing discontent amongst voters that, he believes, will lead to large GOP victories in the coming congressional elections.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., foresees administration policy in Viet Nam leading to a commitment of both manpower and dollars comparable to that in the Korean War.

Gov. George Romney, Republican governor of Michigan, calls the federal government the "biggest inflationary force" in America today. To stave off inflation, Romney believes the administration is headed toward a totally controlled economy.

The three made the comments Sunday on a weekly radio program sponsored by the Republican National Committee.

Nixon said he had visited all parts of the country during the past three months and that he was "convinced that 1966 can and will be a Republican year.

"I say this based on a new spirit of unity which is growing throughout the country and I say it also because of a growing feeling among people all over America of discontent with regard to the policies of the present administration," Nixon said. "A united Republican party can win in 1966."

Former GOP congressman Robert Taft Jr., of Ohio, accused the Johnson administration of moving too slowly in assuring all Americans the right to vote.

Taft, who heads a GOP task force on government, called for tightening of both federal and state election laws.

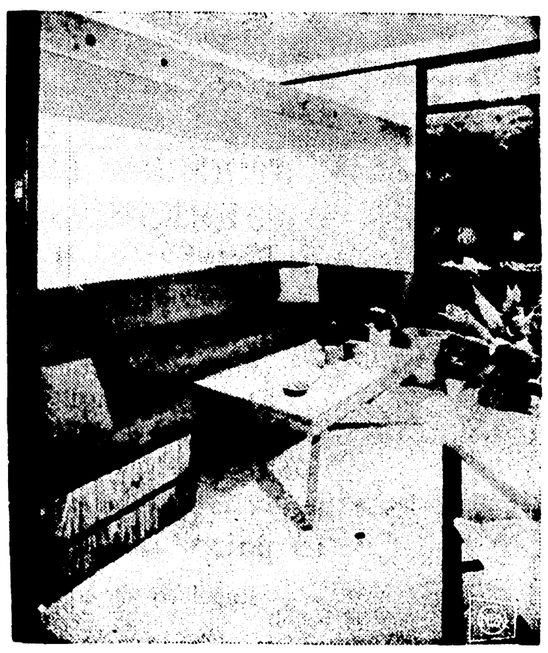
Home Away From Home

"The Hideout" provides all the necessary shelter for outdoor lovers



Marine-type sleeping facilities are provided by convertible furniture and optional 5-by-10 bunk.

DELUXE "TENTING" — A cross between a tent and a trailer is now coming on the market for camping enthusiasts. The innovators hope it has the best qualities of each and also offers some of the features of a permanent summer cottage. Small in size, 10 by 14 feet, it is portable, but contains a galley, heating and water systems, toilet facilities and a shower. According to the developers, Outboard Marine of Waukegan, Ill., and Aluminum Corporation of America, Pittsburgh, Pa., it will provide quarters for four adults or two adults and three children. It is priced in the range of $3,000.

Trio Convicted Of Extortion

DETROIT (UPI) — Lester C. Ellerhorst, once a wealthy suburban contractor, and two Florida men Monday were convicted of conspiring to extort money from and murder a Detroit Attorney.

A Recorder's Court jury deliberated less than 1½ hours Monday after spending two hours in deliberations Friday before it were sent home for the Christmas weekend.

All three men face up to five years in jail on each conspiracy count. The charges also carry a maximum $10,000 fine. The jail sentences must be consecutive according to Michigan law.

The 11-day trial saw the conviction of Ellerhorst, 61, Edward Szeles, 34, and James Clark, 46. Judge Vincent J. Brennan ordered the three returned to the Wayne County Jail for sentencing Jan. 10. Ellerhorst was charged with hiring the two men in a plot against attorney Arthur Bichan.

Brennan also ordered psychiatric tests for Ellerhorst who has spent most of the past eight years in jail, as a fugitive or a patient at Northville State Hospital.

Appeal Likely

Ellerhorst's attorney, Joseph W. Lousell, said he was surprised at the verdict and indicated he would file an appeal.

The 275-pound Garden City contractor still faced charges of assault with intent to kill a Garden City Municipal Judge, Richard Swarthout.

Ellerhorst fired a pistol at Swarthout in 1957, while Swarthout was city attorney in the suburb during a meeting of the city's planning commission. Ellerhorst wound up wounding Garden City Mayor James Tierney, now a state legislator, in the dispute over the construction of a city police station.

In 1959, Ellerhorst was placed in Northville but escaped twice from the hospital. He was finally located in Florida and became the center of an extradition controversy before he was returned to Michigan.

Assault Conviction

Ellerhorst was convicted of felonious assault of Tierney in 1963 but Tierney has been unable to collect a $150,000 judgement against him.

The plot came to light when police were tipped off and arrested Szeles and Clark as they drove up to Bichan's house in Detroit.

A former business associate of Ellerhorst, Floyd Kupkowski, 42, Livonia, tipped off police of the plot. Another business associate, Donald J. Sundberg, 38, Sylvan Lake, had said he was a co-conspirator in the case.

Sundberg twice said he was offered money not to testify in the case. Last July he said his attorney, Evan H. Callahan, Garden City, offered him $10,000 if he refused to testify and during the trial he changed his story and said Swarthout gave him $200 as part of a $1,000 payoff if he would make a false bribery report.

The State Attorney General's office was making an investigation of the alleged bribe.

Brain Protein Builds Memory

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A University of Michigan scientist reported Monday there is evidence that long-term memory is a chemical process involving the brain's manufacture of protein.

Dr. Bernard W. Agranoff, a professor of biological chemistry at U-M, presented his findings to the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He told of experiments in which two unrelated antibiotic drugs, both known to block protein manufacture, were found to impair memory formation in goldfish.

Agranoff trained goldfish to swim over a hurdle on a light signal in order to avoid an electric shock. He said the goldfish have a very stable memory and can remember to jump the hurdle months after having learned the technique.

But, he said, if they get a tiny dose of an antibiotic called puromycin or another he calls AXM, they fail to remember what they have learned.

He also said, however, there is not yet a "simple correlation" between the drugs' action on protein and their effect on memory. Nor, he said, have specific proteins or parts of the brain been pinpointed in the little-understood memory process.

Agranoff conducted his National Science Foundation-supported experiments with zoologist Roger E. Davis and biochemist John J. Brink at U M's Mental Health Research Institute.

New Cheese Cake For New Year

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

It's thoroughly American and popular all over the country. It's Cheese Cake.

Whenever a recipe for this dessert appears, cooks who enjoy baking seem to take notice.

We found the formula for this particular cheese cake in a leaflet published, about 20 years ago, by a dairy company here in the East. The recipe that follows is an up-to-date adaptation of the earlier formula. If you carefully follow the directions, you should have good luck—as we did—in turning out this scrumptious dessert with a level top and nary a crack.

Cheese Cake

Graham cracker crumbs
1 pound small curd creamstyle cottage cheese
2 packages (each 8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1½ cups sugar
4 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup corn starch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 pint commercial sour cream

Spread bottom and sides of a 9-inch spring form pan with butter. Dust sides with graham crumbs. Force cottage cheese through a fine-mesh sieve into a large mixing bowl; add cream cheese. Beat with high speed of electric mixer until well blended and creamy. Beating at high speed, gradually blend in sugar, then eggs. Reduce speed to low. Add corn starch, lemon juice and vanilla. Beat until blended. Add melted butter and sour cream. Blend with low speed. Pour into prepared pan. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven until firm around edges—about 1 hour and 10 minutes. Turn off oven; let cake stand in oven with door closed for 2 hours. Remove from oven and cool completely on wire rack. Chill. Remove sides of pan. Makes about 12 servings.

To freeze: Wrap cheesecake in plastic film. Freeze. Defrost, wrapped, in refrigerator overnight. Cake may be frozen up to 1 month.

FOR CHEESE CAKE FANCIERS—This delightful version calls for both creamstyle cottage cheese and cream cheese.

Tastes Scanned For Color TV

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —NBC has issued a "research bulletin" reflecting on the tastes of people who own color television sets, and I'm not so sure that the profile that emerges is as admirable as the network might like to think.

In brief, the statistics presented reflect, by and large—if they can be considered accurate—the most bourgeois sort of tastes, the kind that indicate persons who worship status and material success, who try with all their might to keep up with the Joneses, who will settle for quick, mechanized products instead of the real item if they are easier to use.

Admittedly, the voluminous report, described as a marketing study, was not intended primarily for the general televiewer's interest, but rather to entice advertisers to color-leader NBC-TV with this alleged information about "the product usage levels and purchase patterns of people living in color television homes."

Statistics, however, are a wonderfully flexible category of human endeavor. I would like, for instance, to point out the exquisite higher judgment of one item of Esquire Magazine's "fifth annual dubious achievement awards," which noted that "there are now more college students in the state of California than in Western Europe," and preceded this statement with the subheading: "Fat lot of good it will do." Anyway, as for those NBC-TV statistical assertions:

Big Spenders

They allege that color set owners are "heavy spenders on household products," with average weekly expenditures in grocery stores and supermarkets amounting to $28.27, or "21 per cent higher than for all homemakers." They allege that color set owners are "venturesome," tending to use newer, "modern" products: "Aerosol products over bottled versions of the same products; movie film rather than still picture film; electric toothbrushes, etc."

The statistics allege that color set owners make heavy use of "convenience" products —"They are well above the national average in usage of frozen foods, paper products, automatic dishwashersoap, prepared cocktail mixes, etc." Further examples along these lines:

"Men in color homes are especially heavy users of shoe polish in spray cans . . . They are below average in usage of paste shoe polish — a product which requires some effort to use properly." Also: "Homemakers in color television homes are heavy users of frozen cakes and pies, but slightly below average in usage of layer cake mix. Evidently, they would rather thaw than bake." Unlike grandma.

Color set owners, say the statistics, buy more new cars than the general population and "have a tendency to buy products with a 'status symbol' aura. They have four times the national level of ownership of high-priced cars . . . They have a high degree of interest in buying wall-to-wall carpeting. They are much likelier than non-owners to use scotch and bourbon rather than rye," which is described as a "non-status whiskey." In addition:

Color set owners "have well above average usage of clothing, cosmetics, toiletries . . . and diet foods." "Women in color television homes are heavy users of cosmetics and toiletries . . . Adults in color homes are above average users of deodorants."

Bits and Pieces

The Channel Swim: Most of the series canceled in this new season have been in black-and-white rather than color . . . The Miss America pageant will be telecast in color for the first time next September, on NBC, which won it away from CBS . . . The National Geographic Society has added two more color specials to its television earliest known remains of man in Africa, the other about a couple's around-the-world trip in an amphibious jeep.

The worldwide effort to translate the Bible is the subject of CBS-TV's "Lamp Unto My Feet" Jan. 9 . . . A major British video station has worked out a mutual cooperation and exchange agreement with Russian television . . . A one-hour documentary about the growing crisis over the spread of nuclear weapons will be broadcast by NBC-TV April 17 . . . An examination of the plight of abandoned American children, and what is being done to help them, is set for "ABC Scope" Jan. 8.

Low Deer Kill Has Showdown

LANSING (UPI) — The chairman of the House Conservation Committee has called for a "no holds barred" meeting of his committee with Conservation Department officials Wednesday to find out what happened during the recent low-yield deer season.

"Currently, there are indications that feelings are running quite high and we could undoubtedly marshall considerable support for speedy action of some kind," said Rep. Joseph M. Snyder, D-St. Clair Shores, in a letter to his committee.

"However, action by itself, if misguided, is not necessarily progress and I am convinced that we must assume a responsible role in this matter, carefully considering a course which will result in proper conservation of the deer herd."

Hunters have been grumbling since the season ended Dec. 6 about the scarcity of deer resulting in only about one hunter out of six bringing home venison. Many are calling for a moratorium on antlerless deer hunting to rebuild the herd.

Others have criticized management policies of the Conservation Department.

"The department people will be advised this is a 'no holds barred' meeting and should be prepared to answer any questions," Snyder said.

Senate Conservation Committee Chairman Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, held one public hearing in Pontiac Dec. 10 on the deer problem and had one scheduled for Monday night in Flint. Some 1,800 people were on hand for the Pontiac hearing.

THEY DON'T KNOW BETTER

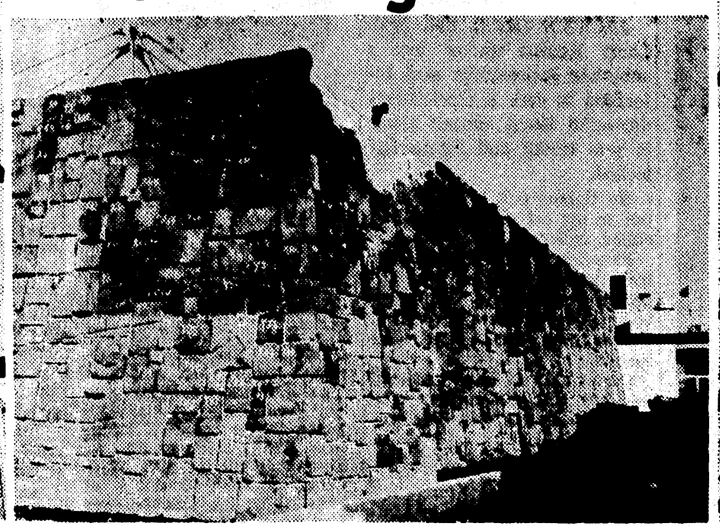
ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Thieves who broke into salesman Don Elam's auto, taking a suit and other clothing worth $96 and sample cases of spring fashions in gloves and slippers, must be miffed.

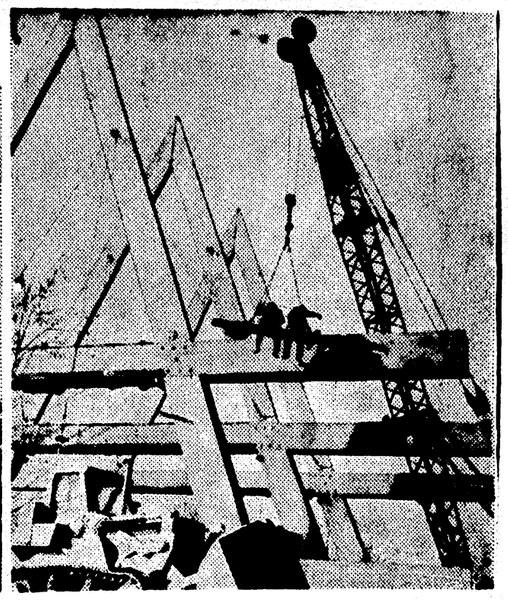
Two of the sample cases contained ladies gloves and the other case was filled with fancy slippers.

All the gloves are for the left hand, and all the slippers are for the right foot.

"This discourages the professional thieves," Elam said, "but not the amateurs."

To Live Again . . .





WHILE TRACES of the World's Fair rapidly succumb to the demolition worker at Long Island's Flushing Meadows, not all of the fanciful pavilions and halls which intrigued visitors during the fair's two-year run are destined for the scrap heap. Some consigned to new owners at new locations have been demolished piece-by-piece for shipment and reconstruction. The Johnson Wax Co. pavilion, left, is destined for a new home as a theater at the company's home base, Racine, Wis. The individual blocks of the massively walled Japanese pavilion, center, have been numbered to aid reassembly. The Danish pavilion, right, also is to be moved to a new location beam by massive beam.

Bank In Florida Left Unlocked Over Holidays

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Larry Hanson walked into a suburban Jacksonville bank intending to cash a check Monday—and found himself alone. It was closed and supposedly locked.

He tiptoed out, being careful not to set off any alarms, and called police.

Patrolman D. J. Crews, who investigated, reported that apparently the front door had been unlocked since Friday but that nothing seemed to be disturbed.

Crews said a bank official told him that the employe who usually locks the door left early Friday.

Mich Con Unit In Gas Project

DETROIT (AP) — Two pipe line firms said today they plan a $75.6 million expansion program, with Michigan getting more than 70 per cent of the increased capacity in gas transmission.

Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co. and American Louisiana Pipe Line Co. said they have filed a joint application with the Federal Power Commission to construct transmission facilities that would carry an additional 77 billion cubic feet of gas per year.

Construction of the pipe lines will begin as soon as the commission approves the project, the firms said. Completion is scheduled for early next fall, to help the firms meet peak winter daily demands of 2.432 billion cubic feet.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. will purchase approximately 70 per cent of the new salable supply, some 135 million cubic feet of gas per day, the firms said.

The remainder is scheduled for sale to Milwaukee Gas Light Co. and 38 other utilities, including Michigan Gas and Electric Co. and Michigan Gas Utilities Co.

Wilber H. Mack, executive vice president of the pipe line companies, said the expansion will require construction of 527 miles of 30-inch pipe line. He said when the project is completed American Louisiana will have dual, 30-inch lines for nearly all its 1,000 mile length from southern Louisiana gas fields to Detroit.

Michigan Wisconsin, American Louisiana, Michigan Consolidated and Milwaukee Gas are subsidiaries of American Natural Gas Co.

The two pipe line firms are in the process of merging into a single company, with Michigan Wisconsin to take over operations of American Louisiana and construct the new transmission lines.

As part of the proposed expansion, Michigan Wisconsin intends to add 8,800 horsepower to three compressor stations in Michigan and Illinois and lease an underground storage field near Reed City from Michigan Consolidated.

Sale Ordered On Castor Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The General Services Administration recently announced that it was offering for sale about 5,689,800 pounds of castor oil from the national stockpile.

In this case, however, the action had nothing to do with President Johnson's campaign to hold down prices.

Apparently, the GSA simply decided that it had more castor oil on hand than the national interest required. Which isn't too astonishing.

A little castor oil can go a long way, depending on what you are using it for.

The GSA said castor oil "is used in the manufacture of all purpose greases, hydraulic fluid, artificial leather, printing ink, soap and cosmetics."

More Famous Used

Maybe so, but that isn't what it was used for when I was a lad. In those days, virtually every bathroom medicine cabinet in America had its own castor oil stockpile.

This provided a mighty incentive for staying healthy. Particularly among small boys.

Castor oil had psychological restorative powers that even exceeded its vaunted potency. The very thought of taking it could cure almost anything.

Some mothers administer it not only for medicinal purposes but also to maintain law and order. The threat of being sentenced to swallow a spoonful of castor oil was a highly effective crime deterrent in the younger generation.

In fact, I have a theory that the rise in juvenile delinquency stems in part from the development of nostrums that are easily swallowed and fairly pleasant to taste.

Economic Lever

If the childhood memories of the nation's industrialists are as vivid as my own, President Johnson could use the castor oil stockpile as a powerful economic lever.

Let us suppose that the kewpie doll industry announces a 5 per cent price increase. This exceeds the President's anti-inflation formula. He summons industry leaders to the White House.

"Roll back the price, boys, or I'm going to the stockpile."

"You're planning to sell government-owned kewpie dolls on the open market?"

"No, I'm planning to release 10,000,000 gallons of castor oil."

The memory of castor oil congealing in the gullet brings the room to the brink of panic. They quickly accede to the President's wishes.

Lori, who lives in Milwaukee, visited Senator Hart in Washington during her nationwide tour on behalf of the more than 250,000 children born each year in this country with serious birth defects. The March of Dimes, in its traditional January campaign, is raising funds to fight birth defects through nationwide programs of patient care, research, public and professional education.

Guide Can Contribute Success To Outings

By LEE SMITS

Joe was an Indian guide, before the outboard motor era. He rowed fishermen, he drove deer out of swamps for hunters. Joe, a college graduate, came to be known as Big Buck. He spoke, in the presence of customers, the dime novel Indian dialect. He would point to the ground at least once a day and mutter, "Ugh, big buck," indicating what were supposed to be deer tracks, often invisible to the untrained eye. He received board and bunk in addition to $3 a day from clients.

Guiding has never been an over-crowded profession in Michigan. The big duck clubs had marsh experts known as "punters," a term that lingers even when the punter takes his customers out in a high-powered cruiser. "Charter" is also used for guiding services. On Au Sable the navigators of John boats certainly qualify as authentic guides.

★ ★ ★

On the Walpole Indian reserve, on the Canadian side of the St. Clair Flats, there are guides on whom the paleface gunner is dependent. On Lake St. Clair a few highly knowledgable residents take sportsmen out, for bass, muskellunge, ducks. The dean of this fraternity, now past 80 and semi-retired, is legendary. He has been highly successful, basing his career on the theory that the customer is always wrong.

A typical story is based on this man's fanatical belief in 7½ shot for ducks. A sportsman, out with him for the first time, was asked what size shot he used. He said that he favored the standard No. 6. His guide asked to look at a box of his shells, gave it a glance, and threw it into the lake, handing his client a box of 7½s.

★ ★ ★

For those venturing into new fishing or hunting grounds or into wilderness country the services of a guide are of prime importance. Without what pilot books call "local knowledge" a lot of time can be wasted finding fish or game.

From the office of A. Kelso Roberts, minister of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, comes an Outdoorsman's Manual, with a section devoted to guides.

"The good guide," says the manual, "is an extremely versatile fellow. His qualities are many: the ability to locate game and fish; proficiency in cooking and camp-craft; cleanliness, friendliness, leadership, ingenuity and possession of a broad knowledge of the outdoors.

"A guide's relationship with his party is unique. He is their employe — yet at the same time their leader.

"With perhaps a few exceptions, sportsmen do not want to associate with the bearded, unwashed individual who many picture as the typical guide.

"Drinking to excess on the part of a few guides gives the profession a bad name and, usually it is those who supply the liquor who complain the loudest. It is a good policy to refuse to drink until the day's work is finished, and then only in moderation."

★ ★ ★

A friend of mine, accompanied by his wife had a successful duckhunt on the Canadian side of the border with a likable guide. Came evening and my friend produced a pint, took a nip and handed the bottle to the guide, who tipped the flask up and drained it, with the result that the guide, the hunter and his wife spent a long, shivering night on the marsh. This sportsman did not complain loudly. He complained not at all, but too't all the blame for the misadventure.

In Canada the typical guide is a trapper, in season, and a pulpwood cutter, if he runs out of groceries between seasons. The guide is usually hired by an outfitter, and the going wage is around $35 a day, the guide taking charge of two customers.

★ ★ ★

It is not enough for the modern guide to be able to dress a deer, paddle a canoe, wield an axe, start a fire in the rain, fry fish, call moose. He should be a pretty fair motor mechanic, a snow-cat operator, martini mixer and if he can pilot a bush plane it will add to his earning power.

In the wilds of Ontario a sure fire method of getting a moose is to spot a suitable specimen from the air, land on the nearest lake or pond and stalk the animal, with the assistance of that versatile fellow, the guide.

MARQUETTE—New Year in Kuala Lumpur, Federation of Malaysia, lies ahead for 77 new Peace Corps Volunteers, including a young Marquette woman who was graduated from Northern Michigan University last January. She is Miss Mary Pelissier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Pelissier, 518 S. Front St., Marquette, and a 1961 graduate of Bishop Baraga Central High School.

Miss Pelissier, who majored in history at Northern, recently completed 13 weeks of training at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Ill., and two weeks at a site near Hilo, Hawaii. Members of Malaysia XIII will teach English in primary and secondary schools in Sabah (formerly North Borneo) and Malaya.

It was reported last week that an Upper Peninsula couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Bell, left for India for a Peace Corps assignment. Mrs. Bell, the former Claire Johnson of Ishpeming, was graduated from Northern last summer with a major in psychology. Her husband, a native of Laurium, also received his bachelor's degree from Northern, graduating in 1963 with a major in sociology.

Hawaiians Still Hear Rumble Of Remote Volcano

HILO, Hawaii (AP) — Hawaii's remote Kilauea volcano still rumbles and fumes but it appears that the sudden eruption which began Christmas Eve is subsiding.

Residents of the island, 200 miles southeast of Honolulu, felt slight tremors Monday — three days after bright orange and red lava fountains burst out of the volcano's Aloi crater.

But scientists said there appeared to be no further movements of lava underground.

Experts at the Hawaii Volcano Observatory are trying to determine why Kilauea erupted without apparent warning.

The Aloi crater last erupted in 1962. It is in an unpopulated area about 30 miles southwest of Hilo.

Flint Residents Skid Into Creek

MONTROE (UPI) — Four Flint residents had a brush with death Monday when their car went out of control on U.S. 24 and skidded into a creek near here.

Sherry Doston, 35, was the most seriously injured. She suffered a fractured back and was taken to a Toledo, Ohio, hospital.

She was rescued from the car half submerged in Stony Creek by Jerry Daniels, who lives near the creek. Daniels heard the crash, went to the scene and dove into the cold water to help rescue the woman.

Police said the car, driven by Franklin W. Pleasant, 30, plunged into the creek after having skidded more than 200 feet and having twice bounced off a steel guard rail.

Pleasant and his other passengers, Robert Harris, 32, and Dorothy Holland, 32, escaped through a window. They told police they could not open a door of the car because of water pressure.

Tax Negotiated

ROME (AP) — Actor Marcello Mastroianni says he made $48,000 in 1965, but Rome's tax assessors insist he earned $160,000.

It's all part of the "family tax" game played each year in Italy. The tax office throws out a figure, the citizen swears it's ridiculously high, then they negotiate a settlement somewhere in between. The tax rate runs from 10 to 15 per cent of income.

Lunar Holiday Of Vietnamese Starts Jan. 20

Communist cease-fire announcement as something to be dealt with by the military command on the spot. U.S. officials had taken that line throughout in connection with the brief and often-broken Christmas cease-fire.

A State Department spokesman declined comment of any nature on the new Viet Cong move.

Officials here and in the United States deliberately avoided any discussion of the air war moratorium, which was generally interpreted as a new effort to draw North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh's regime to the conference table and to show the world the United States is ready to talk peace even if the Communists are not.

Amid the flurry of speculation about the air lull, three Americans were reported in Hanoi on an unauthorized private mission to North Viet Nam's capital. The State Department bans travel by Americans to North Viet Nam.

The travelers are Staughton Lynd, an assistant professor of history at Yale University and member of the editorial board of Viet Report, a monthly publication usually critical of U.S. policy in Viet Nam; Thomas Hayden, 26, a founder of the Students for a Democratic Society, and Herbert Aptheker, Marxist theoretician and historian.

Titans Defeat Harvard Quint

DETROIT (UPI)—To the surprise of no one, the University of Detroit defeated Harvard University, 83-63, and walked easily into the final round of the 14th annual Motor City Tournament.

The Titans will face William and Mary, the other first round winner in the championship contest tonight.

It was the 13th time in the 14 years the tournament has been played that the host-team Titans have gone into the final round.

The University of Detroit was challenged by the smaller Harvard team only in the opening minutes. Harvard kept close and even took a 13-12 lead after five minutes of the game but a flurry of baskets by Dorie Murrey, Jim Boyce and Larry Salci put the Titans ahead to stay and rewarded the partisan crowd of 5,883 for their attendance.

Murrey and the other leading Detroit scorer, Lou Hyatt, got in foul trouble early and sat out much of the first half, but even so the Titans picked up a 50-37 lead by the intermission.

Harvard tried a second half comeback and once closed the gap to 58-50 but again Detroit rallied and within a few minutes had stacked up an unbeatable 77-55 lead.

Keith Sedlacek topped the scoring for both teams, scoring 27 points for Harvard. After Sedlacek, however, the scoring fell off sharply, with George Neville taking second high for the Crimson, with 11 points.

Boyce was the top Titan scorer with 19 points and Murrey had 18 before fouling out with 2:24 left in the game.

In the first game of the evening, William and Mary defeated Eastern Kentucky in a sluggish, 76-64 win.

Guard Walter Wenk scored 10 in the first half and a dozen in the final session for a 22-point total to lead the Indians' victory. Eddie Bodkin had an identical 22-point total for Eastern Kentucky.

William and Mary took a 32-20 halftime lead, and jumped it up to 45-29 early in the second half. Eastern Kentucky battled back, cutting the score to 47-44 before Ron Panneton scored a basket and two free throws to start the Indian victory rally.

Eastern Kentucky and Harvard will meet in the consolation round tonight and the University of Detroit, now 6-2, will battle William and Mary, 4-5, for the title in the second game of the night.

Juvenile Behavior Improved

Top Conservation Achievement

The year 1965 in the three county Escanaba District of the Michigan Conservation Department was one of change and progress.

The public may regard a good or bad deer hunt as the biggest thing of the year in conservation, but the deer hunt is just one activity of many for department personnel, although it is the biggest single public involvement in any outdoor sport.

Robert Timmer, supervisor of the district, came to it on Feb. 21 and from his view one of the top achievements of the year was the improvement in juvenile behavior. This didn't just happen; officers worked with young people and with their parents to point out both the laws and the rules of good behavior for youths.

"We see a trend toward improvement," said Timmer. "There is not the number of flagrant violations that there were last spring in the Escanaba area. I don't know whether the improvement should be credited to education or to better law enforcement; perhaps to both.

"There had been a general let-down in respect for law and our officers were running into dozens of young persons out on Saturdays with firearms. A person under 17 cannot carry a gun when not accompanied by a parent or guardian. We talked with the parents and we talked with the young people. A few of them went to probate court."

The better attitude of youth is regarded by the department as an achievement in human conservation.

The district — which embraces Delta and Marquette counties and the west half of Alger — has fewer conservation officers than it used to have. It now has 12 officers and one predatory animal control officer. There are no officers at Trenary, Big Bay or Michigamme - Champion now, some free lance officers have been dropped.

Robert Timmer

The old pattern of officer assignment was about four to a county but Timmer thinks this is inequitable and inefficient. There still is great disparity in the number of persons served by an officer, as in the contrast between Escanaba and Ensign, but conservation is a service to resources as well as persons, which complicates assignment of officers. Timmer said that more officers are needed for efficient patrol of the district.

The year saw continuation of the trend in the Conservation Department to emphasize fishery development, and to work cooperatively with clubs and other organizations on joint projects.

"It was a successful year in law enforcement," said Timmer." "One indication was more arrests, but we don't judge only on arrests. We think it was more significant that during the deer season there were no 'not guilty' pleas to game charges.

"We definitely had more outside deer hunters in the area than a year ago. This seems to have resulted from the later season downstate and it resulted in some complaints from local hunters. They want to know why the Lower Peninsula hunters can have two openings when they have only one? The answer seems to be that they can go downstate just like the Lower Peninsula hunters come to the U. P. if they want two openers."

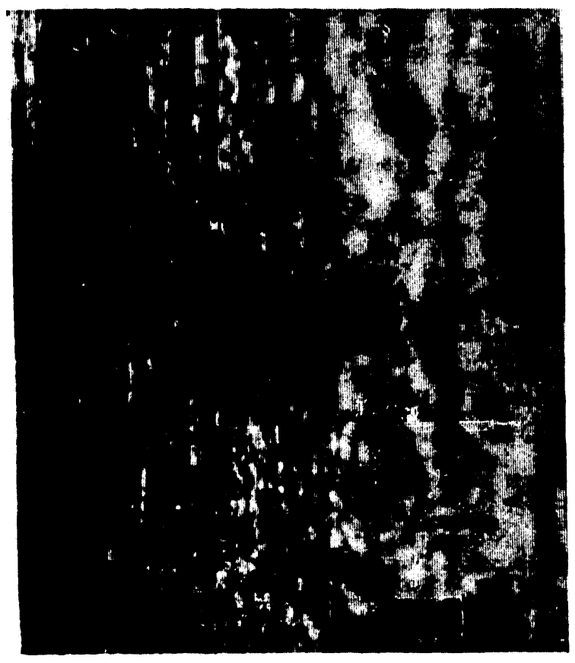
Russia Wants More Teachers

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union plans to offer gifted students improved educational facilities and more teachers.

"It is planned to have some schools with special emphasis on physics, chemistry, mathematics, biology, radio engineering, and mechanization and electrification of agriculture," said a commission of scientists and educators in a report on the new curriculum released Monday.

"Such schools will be given improved facilities and more teachers."

The new program was drafted to bring school curricula in line with the government's decision last year to cut basic education from 11 years to 10.



WORKERS IN THE Stanley Gustafson sawmill at Carney found this spent bullet in a cedar board after the 1965 deer hunting season. It appears to be a .30 or .32 caliber slug and had penetrated the board about 3/8 inch after coming down almost vertically and it did not mushroom at all. The rifling marks are plainly visible. (Photos by Gene Peterson, Carney)

THIS BULLET, about .38 caliber, was found in a piece of Norway pine paneling which Gene Peterson of Carney bought from the late Clyde Merrill of Carney, who cut the logs from which it was made at Cedar River, where there's been lots of shooting for a century. The saw and the planer split the bullet and its wound channel. The tree grew new wood over the point of entry and the wound filled with pitch.

Will Men Wear Bell Bottoms?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manufacturers and retail stores have a $64 million question on their hands for Spring, 1965. It's whether men will accept a fashion being worn by women -- even though it originally was a man's fashion.

The fashion is bell bottomed trousers, one presumably invented by sailors so they could roll them up easily when swabbing the decks. The fashion, worn by women, has swept from the beaches of the French Riviera to the supermarkets of Pasadena.

Levi Strauss has been manufacturing bell bottomed jeans for women for decades and they have been worn not only by trick riders in rodoes but by the "in" crowd frequenting western ranches and other horsey areas.

But will men wear them? Well, the younger set began wearing them late this year in a number of resort areas. Usually they were very nautical looking, sometimes with sailor-type laced backs, and worn on the beaches or on boats with nautical-type jackets.

They made a spectacular change from a tapered slacks of recent years and both manufacturers and retailers were intrigued with the prospects of new sales. But then came the big question: How many to make and how many to buy? There was such fear the fad would become a dud that many persons who have to do the ordering broke out into a clammy sweat.

Made In Quantity

They are being manufactured in quantity if not in depth and if they should catch on big there will be a shortage. If they do not catch on, well, there goes the $64 million . . .

Many top manufacturers are turning them out in belief they will become a best seller. Jaymar-Ruby Inc., came up with bell bottomed Madras slacks for the younger set for spring. The A-1 Kotzin Co. of Los Angeles (where the surfing look sprang up) advertises them for surfers. Levi Strauss, which makes millions and millions of Levis turns them out in faded blue, white, sand and navy.

When worn late this summer they usually were topped off with fishermen's net shirts, velours in fancy laced up throats, Henley neck shirts in French sailor stripes or simple slipons with a slit opening called a boating collar. The pants themselves either were with tops like ordinary jeans or very low rise slacks.

Andrew Pallack, who mostly makes suits and sport jackets, came up with his own version of the bell bottom trousers this fall and showed them with double breasted jackets. He expects the style to expand mightly by next Spring and reports many orders pouring in.

The manufacturers and retailers are worried because for men to take up a women's fashion is a complete reversal of the unusual practice. Women can take a man's shirt and wear it so it looks sexy. Some women can do the same to slacks. But the last style stolen by men was the long-haired look of the Beatles. Who knows about bell bottoms?

Russell Plans Lawsuit Against State In Entry

MARQUETTE—Frank J. Russell, owner of the Four Seasons bowling lanes, announced, Monday that he is preparing to file suit in Marquette County Circuit Court against the Michigan Liquor Control Commission and the City of Marquette for invasion of privacy and illegal entry of private premises.

Without warning, Russell said, two police officers Sunday night at about 10:30, obtained entry to the building and disrupted a private party for employes, which had been catered by the Northwoods.

Russell added that this action not only was an invasion of privacy, but also was in complete contradiction of all state and federal laws covering search and seizure.

One officer went from table to table taking the names and addresses of everyone present, Russell said. He was very pleasant and obviously following instructions from his superior, Russell said.

However, he added, this "caused considerable confusion and distress to many of those attending the party."

The officers said they were acting under instructions from the MLCC.

Russell said he estimated the damage suit would be about $1,000,000 for punitive damages.

Bruins' Coach Isn't Worried

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—UCLA players, resuming Rose Bowl drills after a two-day Christmas layoff, were termed sluggish Monday by Coach Tommy Prothro.

"We weren't very polished," Prothro said after the drill. "In fact, we looked pretty poor. But I'm not too worried."

The Bruins worked on offense and reviewed all their plays and formations Monday. Halfback Mel Farr appeared to be faking and running well in the workout.

The drill was against Michigan State defensive formations as employed by the Green-shirted forsh and junior varsity.

Prothro devoted the last half of the workout to speed drills and said it was evident his players were still too full of turkey to put the zest into the sprints that they had shown prior to the holiday.

UCLA will hold only three more workouts before Jan. 1 when they meet the Spartans in the Rose Bowl. Another full practice was scheduled for today.

Coach Bob Kuntze's Carney Wolves threw a scare into Channing, leading by one point early in the third quarter, but couldn't maintain the pace as the Railroaders laced home 43 points in the second half. Randy Swanson topped the Channing scoring list with 17 points, Bob Roell tossed in 14 and freshman Tod Lindeman added 13. Jerome Bichel's 15 led Carney.

Coach Tom Lequia's P-S Tigers built up a 43-29 lead in the first three frames and then staved off a Champion rally in the fourth quarter. David Smith of Powers led both teams in scoring with 19 points.

Coach Fred Boddy's Marquette Bishop Baraga Royals ran roughshod over Perkins, 120-47, in the holiday opener at the Eben court last night.

In other games the host Eagles spilled Garden, 67-39, Republic beat Rock, 73-56, and Cooks trimmed National Mine, 57-37.

Jim Lehtomaki led three Eben players in double digits with 14 points while Darrel LaVigne paced Garden with 16. The Jets took an 11-8 first quarter lead but Eben took command by halftime, 29-22.

Larry Lippens punched in 19 points for the Rock Little Giants but it wasn't enough as Republic had three cagers in double figures, led by John Pietila with 23.

The classy Cooks quint, coached by Norman Jahn, had four players in double figures against National Mine. Phil Hartman led with 15. Gene Benvenue of National Mine scored 20.

Marquette Baraga blasted off with a 41 point performance in the first stanza against Perkins and built the margin to 105-41 in three quarters.

Bruce Pesola hooped 24 points to lead six Royals in double figures as the Marquette team ran its season record to 6-1. Reggie and Mark Depuydt split 20 points between them for Perkins.

West Triggers Laker Victory

By United Press Internatonal

It's when Jerry West scores—as well as how much—that makes him one of the National Basketball Association's top stars.

The 6-foot, 2-inch, 180-pound West demonstrated that again Monday night when he scored the Los Angeles Lakers' final nine points in a 108-100 victory over the St. Louis Hawks at Memphis, Tenn. The Lakers started the fourth period trailing by 11 points but closed in on the Hawks with the help of a 10-point scoring burst by Rudy LaRusso.

Richie Guerin led the Hawks with 25 points while West had 24 and Bill Boozer had 23 for the Lakers.

The Cincinnati Royals extended their home-court winning streak over the New York Knicks to 16 games with a 138-116 win. Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas combined to score 61 points for the winners while Dick Barnett paced the Knicks with 29 points.

Ironwood Could Be Best Among Larger Schools

By JIM TRETHEWEY

MARQUETTE — Ironwood, among the larger schools, and DeTour, in the small-school ranks, currently are tabbed as the top basketball teams in the Upper Peninsula.

But analysis of performances to date indicates that little, if any, difference is noted in the comparative strength of leading quintets up to the holiday break. Except for 16 teams competing in two tournaments and two others in the eastern U. P. hosting visitors from downstate, cage outfits throughout the region are enjoying a holiday until after New Year's.

Virtually on a par with Ironwood in the big-school (Classes A-B-C) division are Ishpeming (6-1) and Stephenson, whose 6-0 record is similar to Ironwood's. Ishpeming also has won six straight games, with only a one-point setback in its opener against Manistique marring an otherwise perfect record.

Immediately back of those teams are L'Anse (5-0), pride of the Copper Country; Marquette Baraga (5-1) independent aggregation which at times looked the best in the Peninsula; Crystal Falls (3-3), which is just beginning to reach the heights predicted for it, Wakefield (4-2), Iron River (5-2), Manistique (5-1) and Munising (4-1).

DeTour was given the nod in the small-school (Class D) division simply on the basis of its 8-0 record, since it's difficult to judge the comparative merits of the Red Raiders with those in central and western Upper Peninsula. Here, too, Trout Creek (5-0) and Channing (6-0) should be rated nearly on a par with DeTour.

Hermansville (5-1) and Bergland (6-1) seem to be nearly equal to those three all-winning quintets, followed by Champion (5-1), Pickford (5-1), Mass (4-2), Dollar Bay (5-2) and Ewen (5-1).

As far as conference competition is concerned, Iron River of the Menominee Range seems to be the only one threatening to run away with top laurels. In pre-holiday action, Coach Gus Giuliani's Redskins lost exhibitions to top-ranked Ironwood and Ishpeming; in between they defeated five straight range opponents. Crystal Falls, in second place, already is two games back.

The best race shapes up in the Great Lakes, where Sault Ste. Marie, Manistique and Munising are tied for the lead at 3-1 and Ishpeming is half a game back at 2-1.

In addition to Iron River, only Stephenson, L'Anse, DeTour, Channing, Rapid River, Champion, Trout Creek, Ironwood and Superior (Wis.) Cathedral are undefeated in league play. The standings:

Ex-Holy Name Cagers End Long Loss String

The Holy Name Crusader Alumni basketball team turned on its tormentor last night and spilled the Escanaba Alumni 92-85 in the eighth annual holiday classic played before a crowd of near 900 fans.

The victory was Holy Name's first in the eight year series.

Main factor for the youthful Crusaders, all but three of them from last year's squad, was an outstanding performance on the boards. With Frank Stupak leading the way, Holy Name dominated the rebounding department. He got valuable assistance from Walt Veldman and Bill Micheau.

Holy Name, moving in high gear throughout the contest, drew away to a 42-32 lead at halftime and was never headed.

Frank Trottier displayed the shooting eye that made him the second greatest scorer in Holy Name prep history, popping in nine field goals and five three throws for 23 points. Stupak chipped in with 17, Micheau 13 and Bill O'Connell 11.

Jack Lindquist headed the Escanaba attack with 21 points, followed by Ken Seibert with 15, Barry Andrews and Billy Eis 13 apiece.

Holy Name outscored Escanaba by 10 field goals and added 16 of 27 attempts from the free throw line. The ex-Eskymos made 29 of 44 gift tosses.

Bears Give Up On Top Choice

CHICAGO (UPI) —Owner-coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears announced today the team was withdrawing from pro football's "money derby" and offered rights to the club's No. 1 draft selection to any National Football League team.

Halas said the negotiating rights to Louisiana State tackle George Rice were available to any team "which might be interested."

"The Bears are withdrawing from the money derby, which is getting ridiculous and is not conducive to good squad morale," he said.

Halas said he will work out a trade for the rights, perhaps a future draft choice "or something."

Halas said the Bears "found out what the other fellow was offering and it's beyond reason."

It was obvious that Rice's demands were the factor which induced Halas to give up on his attempts to sign the 250-pound tackle.

Rice was drafted by Houston in the rival American Football League, and the Oilers bid high for No. 1 pick Tommy Nobis of Texas before losing him to the NFL's new Atlanta team.

"My advice, sir – get De-Icer!"

Here we go again. Wintertime driving is here and with it, those built-in problems that make life miserable. Like a frozen gas line. When moisture collects in your gas line, then freezes, the supply of fuel to the engine is choked off. You're stopped cold. But you can avoid the tow truck trip—just use American, Regular or American, Super-Premium Gasoline. Each contains the real thing—DE-ICER—to prevent gas line freeze down to 40° below. Unbeaten Michigan State Rated No. 1 State Story

By CURT SYLVESTER
United Press International

The top 1965 sports story in Michigan—and one of the biggest sports success stories in the nation—is one which won't have its final chapter written until 1966.

The continuing story of the Michigan State Spartans, winning the Big Ten football title on their way to a perfect 10-0 year, was unchallenged as the No. 1 story in a United Press International poll of subscribing newspapers, radio and television stations.

Somewhat ironically, it will be UCLA, the victims of the first Spartan victory this fall, which will throw up the last block to a perfect season for the nationally top-ranked Michigan State team in the Rose Bowl game on Jan. 1.

Wolverines Second

Following the Spartans in the Top Ten sports stories in Michigan during 1965 were their Big Ten cousins from Ann Arbor, the Michigan basketball Wolverines, who also wrapped up a Big Ten title and finished second in the NCAA tournament.

Ranking third was the story of the Detroit Red Wings winning the National Hockey League crown, fourth was the Michigan Rose Bowl victory on Jan. 1, 1965, and fifth was the state high school basketball tournaments at East Lansing.

The early season hitting of Willie Horton ranked as the sixth biggest story, the collapse of the Detroit Lions was seventh, the heart attack which temporarily sidelined Charlie Dressen was eighth, the firing of Forddy Anderson by Michigan State ninth and the misfortunes of the Detroit Pistons was tenth.

Not only would the Michigan State football story rate as the most interesting story of the year, it would undoubtedly be the most surprising.

Most Surprising

Essentially a young team, and a team which had built an unimpressive 4-5 record in 1964, the Spartans were given little chance of reaching football glory this year.

But through the wizardry of Duffy Daugherty, and the complete welding of individuals into a team, the Spartans built what many feel was the most formidable football machine of college football in recent years.

Indicative of the Spartan team was a 12-3 victory over Notre Dame in the final game of the season, when the offensive-minded Irish were held to minus yardage by the hulking defense of Michigan State.

The Michigan basketball team won just about everything—except the Big One in the final round of the NCAA tournament. There the Wolverines were proven to be the second best team in the nation by a talented UCLA Bruin team, which dished them a 91-80 loss.

Rookie Helps

But until that final game of tthe NCAA tourney Dave Strack's star-studded team, paced by All-Americans Bill Buntin and Cazzie Russell, had out-shot and out-muscled every Big Ten opponent for the conference title.

The Detroit Red Wings surprised a few people themselves. Just about nobody could see the Wings passing up team like Montreal and Chicago in the tough NHL, but they did it—with the inspiration provided by a dedicated rookie goalie, Roger Crozier, a veteran who came back for one more season—Ted Lindsay, and a man who led the league in scoring—Norm Ullman.

The No. 4 story of the year was a big story for a lot of people. That was the 34-7 victory which Michigan enjoyed over Oregon State in the Rose Bowl. The win was another prestige boost for the Big Ten conference, it was a final step to success for Wolverine coach Bump Elliot, and it was a personal victory for a dedicated team and its All-American quarterback Bob Timberlake.

Fifth Straight

The fifth story came from the Michigan high school basketball tournament where Benton Harbor, River Rouge, Muskegon Christian, and Covert high schools came away with trophies for their respective classes. It was the second in a row for Benton Harbor in the rugged Class A division and the fifth straight for River Rouge in Class B.

The hitting of Willie Horton took sixth place among the headliners. Horton's early season torrid bat kept him at the top of the league in hitting, homers and runs batted in and earned him a spot on the American League All-Star team.

His hitting trailed off somewhat during the final stages of the season but it was about that time that Norm Cash turned on the power and helped the Tigers finished 16 games above .500 despite a rash of injuries to key players. Also getting votes, but not among the top ten stories were the strong showings of young Denny McLain, who became a main-stay of the pitching staff, and veteran Hank Aguirre, who was practically unbeatable during the early parts of the season.

Lions Collapse

The Detroit Lions, after hiring a new coach Harry Gilmer and picking up a handfull of new faces, including Joe Don Looney, Ron Kramer and Amos Marsh, had hopes of finishing high in the National Football race. Their collapse to sixth place in the Western Division was one of the disappointment stories of 1965 and was seventh in the top stories of the year.

Charlie Dressen's comeback from his March heart attack provided the No. 8 story. Dressen, now the dean of major league managers at 67 years, suffered the heart attack at the Tiger camp in Florida, then non-challantly flew to his home in Los Angeles to recover. The Tigers moved Bob Swift in to handle the team and Dressen was back by the end of May.

The Spartans of Michigan State suffered through one of their worst years of basketball, finishing in the basement of the Big Ten. The firing of coach Forddy Anderson as head coach at the end of the season became the No. 9 story of the year.

Bad News

And the misfortunes of the down-and-out Detroit Pistons closed out the Top Ten stories of 1965. Dave DeBusschere, saddled with the job of both playing for and coaching the bottom team in the National Basketball Association, received nothing but bad news.

DeBusschere lost Terry Dischinger, his scoring leader, to the Army for two years, he lost center Reggie Harding because of scrapes with the law. Bill Buntin finally ended a three-week holdout but was overweight when he did, and even more tragic, the Pistons lost their general manager Don Wattrick, who died of a heart attack.

Two New Teams Challenge Duke For First Spot

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two new challengers in the forms of Vanderbilt and Kentucky have risen from the South to pursue Duke and the title of the top-ranked major college basketball team in the nation.

The Commodores, defending Southeastern Conference champions, moved into the runnerup position behind Duke in the United Press International board of coaches ratings Monday and the Wildcats, another SEC club, bounced into fifth place.

As a result, Dixie can now claim three of the top five teams in the country with only third-ranked Brigham Young and fourth-ranked Bradley spoiling the string.

No one, however, was close to Duke in the balloting by the 35-man UPI board. The Blue Devils, who took over first place three weeks ago with back-to-back victories over defending NCAA champion UCLA, opened their widest lead of the season with 30 first-place votes and 339 points, 55 more than Vandy.

Poor Showings

Duke's gain was partly attributable to the poor showing made by five members of last week's top 10. Three teams, Michigan, St. Joseph's and Wichita, suffered two losses and two more —Providence and Minnesota — dropped one game each.

Duke took care of Michigan with a 100-93 overtime victory over the Wolverines, which coupled with a loss to Butler the following night, toppled Michigan from fifth to ninth in the ratings, based on games through Saturday, Dec. 25.

Even more astounding, however, were St. Joe's successive losses to Brigham Young and Wyoming. The Hawks, as result, plunged from second to seventh while BYU used the upset as a springboard to third place.

Wichita's two losses (to Southern Illinois and Marquette) spilled the Shockers out of the top 10 into a tie for 16th with Missouri Valley foe Cincinnati. A loss to Houston dumped Providence two notches to eighth and Minnesota's losss to Utah State sent the Gophers reeling from fourth to 10th.

Bradley made the most of the opportunities, vaulting all the way from 11th to fourth. The Braves have won their first 10 games. Vanderbilt, Brigham Young, Kentucky and Iowa, which advanced to sixth, also have perfect records.

UCLA rebounded to 11th and has a chance to climb higher in this week's Los Angeles Classic which also includes Vanderbilt and unbeaten Syracuse, ranked 13th this week behind Kansas.

Other Tourneys

The other big tournament on the schedule is the Quaker City Invitational at Philadelphia's Palestra. Brigham Young, St. Joe's and Minnesota are the featured attractions there.

Utah and North Carolina State advanced to a tie for 14th with Dayton, New Mexico and North Carolina rounding out the top 20 in that order.

The Atlantic Coast Conference, the Missouri Valley, the Western Athletic Conference and the Big 10 each is represented by three teams in the ratings. The Big 10, however, is the only league with three clubs in the top 10.

Duke, Kentucky and Bradley are the only members of the elite group not participating in one of the many holiday tournaments. Both Duke and Kentucky play Notre Dame this week with Bradley meeting Indiana.

Iowa will play in the Sun Bowl Tournament, Providence in the Holiday Festival at New York and Michigan in the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Lance Alworth, the San Diego Chargers' lightning-like acrobat who specializes in making difficult catches, today became the first player unamimously named to the American Football League All-Star team selected by the United Press International's board of writers.

Alworth received all 24 votes cast by the board made up of three writers from each league city who covered the AFL this season.

The six-foot, 185-pound former Arkansas All-America, gained more yardage catching passes than any other player in pro ball in 1965 and had an amazing 23.2 yard average per catch to earn the No. 1 flanker spot for the third straight year.

Quarterback Jack Kemp, who hasn't made the All-Star squad since the original 1960 team, was selected to the first team along with center Jim Otto of Oakland and offensive tackle Tom Mix of San Diego, both of whom have been all-AFL performers since the league started in 1960. Kemp is the first quarterback to be chosen more than once.

Lionel Taylor, Denver's split end and a member of the first two All-Star 11s, returned to the 1965 unit and guard Bob Talamini of Houston won a spot for the first time since 1962.

Five For First

Five players made the team for the first time. Tight end Willie Frazier of Houston and tackle Jim Tyrer of Kansas City were picked to the offensive unit and halfback Dave Grayson of Oakland, safety George Saimes of Buffalo and end Roland McDole of Buffalo were placed on the defensive team.

Buffalo dominated the team with six representatives followed by San Diego with five and Kansas City with three. All eight teams had at least one player on the two-platoon team.

Other repeaters from last year were Denver's Cookie Gilchrist at fullback and Billy Shaw of Buffalo at guard on offense.

Eight members of last season's defensive unit returned this year including halfback Fred Williamson of Kansas City for the fourth straight year and tackles Tom Sestak of Buffalo and Ernie Ladd of San Diego for the third straight season.

Earl Faison of San Diego was back at end for the fourth time in five years, and outside linebackers Bobby Bell of Kansas City and Mike Stratton of Buffalo, middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti of Boston and safety Dainard Paulson of New York were selected for the second year.

Most conspicuous by his absence for the defense was New York's outside linebacker Larry Grantham, who held a position on the All-AFL team for four straight years. Others who did not repeat were quarterback Babe Parilli of Boston, fullback Keith Lincoln of San Diego, split end Charlie Hennigan of Houston, tight end Fred Arbanas of Kansas City, offensive tackle Stew Barber of Buffalo, offensive guard Billy Neighbors of Boston, cornerback Willie Brown of Denver and Ron Hall, a safety, from Boston.

No Rookies

There were no rookies on the first team and only one of the second team—Denver's John Bramlett, an outside linebacker from Memphis State.

Mack Lee Hill, the Kansas City back who died Dec. 14 while undergoing routine knee surgery, was chosen the second team fullback. There was no second-team flanker since Alworth drew all the votes. John Hadl of San Diego won the quarterback spot with Clem Daniels of Oakland at halfback.

Tight end Arbanas, tackles Barber and Eldon Danenhauer of Denver, guards Wayne Hawkins of Oakland and Dan Ficca of New York, center Jon Morris of Boston and split end Art Powell of Oakland made up the second team offensive line.

Ends Ben Davidson of Oakland and Jerry Mays of Kansas City, tackles Buck Buchanan of Kansas City and Jim Dunaway of Buffalo, linebackers Grantham: E. J. Holub of Kansas City and Bramlett, halfbacks Butch Byrd of Buffalo and W. K. Hicks of Houston and safeties Johnny Robinson of Kansas City and Ken Graham of San Diego comprised the second defensive unit.

MONTREAL (UPI)—The Detroit Red Wings have three men listed among the top ten scorers in the National Hockey League point race.

Norm Ullman, who led the league in scoring last year, is now fourth with 35 points on 14 goals and 21 assists while teammate Gordie Howe, not slowing down a bit in his 20th year, is in fifth place with 34 points, on 15 goals and 19 assists in 29 games.

Alex Delvecchio is in a tie for seventh place with Bob Nevin of the New York Rangers with 30 points each.

Bobby Hull is leading the league with a torrid 45 points, including 27 goals and 18 assists. His Chicago Black Hawk teammate, Stan Mikita is his closest rival, both in total points and in goals. Mikita has 18 goals and 38 points.

Bobby Rousseau, of Montreal, is in third place with 36 points, just one ahead of Detroit's Ullman. The two men are tied for the league lead in assists, with 21 each.

The Red Wings' Roger Crozier picked up his third shutout of the season Sunday night against the Montreal Canadiens to move into a tie with Glenn Hall of the Black Hawks for the league lead in that department. The Montreal combination of goaltenders, Gump Worsley and Charlie Hodge, has the best goals-against average, with a 2.44 mark.

GLADSTONE

Gladstone Reports

New Year Has Bright Look In Industry Gains

Gladstone's industrial outlook for 1966 is the brightest in many years.

Two of its major industries, Marble Arms Corp. and Eaton-Yale & Towne, are both in expansive mood.

Marble Arms, one of the community's veteran industries, a world-famed manufacturer of sporting goods, will be moving to its new plant in 1966 in Gladstone's Industrial Park on Little Bay de Noc.

The move, expected by April 1, will make its present plant available for other industry and the community is hoping for its acquisition by Eaton for the expansion of its plant in the former Marble Electric plant site across Superior St.

Eaton, which acquired the Marble Electric Division plant from Bell & Gossett—IT&T on Feb. 2 of this year, has doubled its size and productive capacity in the community's largest industrial program of 1965 and will be showing the fine new facility to the community soon.

Eaton Is Growing

Further expansion plans of Eaton have not been announced but the company has been one of the most progressive of American manufacturers of automotive equipment and it has announced another large capital investment program for 1966 in which Dynamatic Division, operating the Gladstone plant, hopes to share.

When Eaton took over Marble Electric on Feb. 2 it had 16 employes and there are now 41 employed, says Reuben Sjoquist, manager. The addition constructed this year adds 16,800 square feet to the plant and doubles its size. There has also been much remodeling of the older plant and installation of new machinery.

The plant is producing electric motors for Eaton and also motor parts for assembly at the Kenosha, Wis., plant of Eaton Dynamatic.

Development work for new products at the Gladstone plant is underway.

Marble's Year

Marble Arms Corp. plant was acquired by a group of Gladstone business and professional men when it was sold by Bell & Gossett - IT&T. Clarence Goodman is president; William Clark vice president and general manager, Reuben Sjoquist, treasurer, and Clair J. Hoehn, secretary.

Clark said "It's been a real good year for us and we expect to wind up with a gain of about 15.5 per cent in sales. We've been up to as much as 18 per cent over last year. I'd say we've had a good first year.

"We expect the next year to be tougher because we'll have new equipment to learn about and new methods. With 1966 past we can do something about sales. We have been afraid to be too aggressive for fear we wouldn't be able to deliver, but we have pretty well met our 1965 merchandise shipping goals.

Making More Knives

"We have increased our sale of knives and this appears to be a good business for us. Our new products for 1966 will include a telescope mount and a device for checking gun cleanness called "Safe Site."

"Our production in 1965 has been in the famed standard Marble lines of gunsights, compasses, match boxes, scopes, gun cleaning kits and such items.

"The new year will be an exciting one for us. We will be in our new plant with more than 20,000 square feet of floor space to arrange in modern production patterns.

"In the first quarter of 1965 we had 21 persons in the shop and we got up to 38 or 40 and overtime work. We're back to 27 now, but this is the quiet time of year in this business."

Briefly Told

State Police of the Gladstone Post issued traffic summonses Monday to Jay T. Knutsen, 417 S. 10th St., Gladstone, improper passing; David H. Mayor, Manager To Seek Federal Aid For I-Park

City Manager H. J. Henrikson and Mayor Frank Stupak will go to Lansing Thursday in an attempt to obtain federal funds for improvements to the industrial park.

The trip was authorized by the City Commission at its regular meeting Monday night at the City Hall.

Stupak and Henrikson said there was a possibility of obtaining up to 60 per cent in federal aid for the proposed improvements to the park under the Economic Development Act of 1965.

The Commission engaged engineers from Williams & Works, Grand Rapids, to make a study of the needs in the park after Marble Arms Corp. requested additional water pressure to meet requirements of their fire insurance company. A report is expected in the near future. The application for federal aid is complete, pending cost estimates from the engineers.

Stupak said funds to meet Gladstone's 40 per cent of the cost may be borrowed on a long-term loan, if necessary. However, this situation will be dealt with in April when the budget is studied, he said.

Permission was granted Marble Arms Corp. and Dynamatic Division of Eaton, Towne & Yale to install a plant fire alarm system in the City Hall. The company's will have the system installed at no cost to the city.

Elmer Caron, 702 Dakota Ave., appeared before the Commission and requested curbing and blacktopping on Dakota Ave., between 7th and 8th streets to complete the project begun last year.

Stupak suggested a signed petition from area residents be submitted to the commission.

Henrikson reported the ice rink is being flooded and if sufficient interest is shown hockey boards will be installed. Jim Pinar, assistant football coach at the high school, has offered to supervise a hockey program on his own time.

Graduates Will Meet With Staff At High School

Graduates of Gladstone High School who are now college freshmen are invited to meet with members of the Board of Education, administrators, guidance personnel and interested members of the high school staff Thursday, Dec. 30, at the James T. Jones School multipurpose area at 7 p. m.

Students and staff will have an opportunity to discuss the course offerings on the local level and suggestions are welcome as to how Gladstone High School can continue to prepare its graduates for college or trade school.

An invitation is also extended to the senior class members who are considering college in the near future to attend this annual meeting. The conference also provides an excellent opportunity for college students and their former teachers to enjoy an informal social hour.

Trying Ideas Important In Community

Belief in one's self, personal initiative, concentration on a project to completion, and a spirit of cooperation were listed by Donald Fry of Dale Carnegie Institute as prime ingredients for community growth and success, in a talk for Rotary Monday.

Eighty per cent of a community's growth comes from within. The economic growth the nation has is man-made. The upper Midwest has the resources and resourcefulness to make that growth whatever it will choose, he noted.

Fry, who is organizing a course in communication, observed that Eagle River, Wis., is growing in its winter activity through efforts of a businessman to bring Chicago sales meetings to the area in winter, development of a ski area, snowmobile races, and hockey. Before the community of 1400 went through the winter on earnings made in summer when population was 25,000.

Merrill, Wis., aided itself by building for a leather glove company which was in heavy competition and had been offered better facilities by another community. The new building and equipment tripled employment and increased sales nine times.

In contrast he cited the Soo, which has lost its industry but which has much other employment at the locks, in construction, at the air base, college and hospital.

Rhinelander, Wis., has a paper mill whose executives were astounded when employes voted against a change to make wax paper, which requires continued 7-day operations. A study showed employes did not understand the change and its meaning, and that 124 additional jobs would have been provided.

The First National Bank in Manistique has shown growth since modernizing and remodeling, Reese's and the People's Store, which have projects underway, should similarly, he noted. These also should increase shopper volume in the business district.

Gib Norden, who used to work for others has started on his own with a fine new store and is contemplating another, Fry pointed out in illustrating self confidence as an important factor in achieving.

Fry urged the community take one project at a time and see it to completion. Improved streets and better downtown lighting were among needs he observed.

Finding ways to accomplish new things, rather than reasons why they shouldn't be done is a key factor in positive thinking. One shouldn't give up either, if the first effort fails, he added.

President Johnson's foreign policy has been much criticized, but two years ago the Communists were talking of victory, and now they are worrying with thoughts of global war, he cited.

All are salesmen and good selling of ideas, products, ourselves, is important to individual success and prosperity. Human relations and our ability to deal with others also are important.

"Happiness is a result of doing something worthwhile. Never say you can't do something until you've proven that you can't," he urged.

Migrating birds have been known to travel more than 250 miles per day, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Accident Toll Is 'Appalling'

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. George Romney and State Police Commissioner Fredrick Davids have promised new efforts to curtail highway accidents in the new year.

Romney said he was "appalled" by reports that close to 700 persons died on the nation's highways during the three-day Christmas holiday, including 30 fatalities in Michigan.

"My wish for the new year is that people will stop mixing alcohol and automobiles and start obeying traffic laws," Romney said. "We in Michigan will continue to do all in our power to enforce existing laws and pass needed legislation that will help in making our highways a safe path of travel."

Davids said during the three-day New Year's holiday all State Police will be on duty plus 116 National Guardsmen who will fulfill assignments that will free police for traffic patrol. These are the same precautions that were taken for the Christmas holiday period.

"Whatever we say it falls back to the same old warning, the driver must accept the responsibility for himself and his passengers," Davids said.

"I would urge all motorists to buckle their seatbelts and, if they plan to do any drinking, make arrangements for someone else to provide the transportation," he added.

Frosh Baby Boom

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A crop of colldge freshmen 18 per cent higher than last year has pushed college enrollment to a record 5.9 million.

The U.S. Office of Education said the increase in college freshmen was a 17 per cent increase over 1963. It said the trend reflected the continued impact of the postwar baby boom on education.

First Christmas in the New World was celebrated by Columbus and his men on the northern coast of Haiti in 1492.

Popour

In loving memory of our dearest mother, sister and aunt, Cecelia Mersnick Popour who died Dec. 28, 1960:

We think of you always and miss you sadly,
And we find the time long since you went
But we look back with tenderness along the path you trod
We bless the years you spent with us and leave the rest to God.
Our Heart is filled with longing as our eyes shed many a tear
God alone knows how we miss you
As we end the fifth sad year.

Sadly Missed By Her Children, Sisters, Brother & Relatives

And always a beautiful memory of our dearest friends, George and Verna Kerr who left us five years ago today.

Installment Debt Over 60 Billion

By HARRY FERGUSON
UPI National Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the last century Artemus Ward wrote: "Let us all be happy and live within our means even if we have to borrow money to do it."

Ward was a humorist and the nation responded with laughter. Here we are now, 80 years later, and it's not a joke. This year the installment debt in the United States passed $60 billion, or $316 for every man, woman and child in the country. It had gone up $19 billion since 1961. It was rising much faster than the total income of American families. In the last 10 years total income rose 40 per cent; the installment debt increased by almost 100 per cent.

Is this good or bad?

It depends on who you happen to be talking to at the moment. To a man who is falling behind on his payments on a car and a television set, installment buying is a plot hatched by the devil to plague honest men. To the automobile manufacturers in Detroit it is oil that keeps their business spinning. In the last four years credit extended to purchase automobiles has increased by $8.5 billion.

New Credit Card

There are all sorts of ways that people can live on credit. They can charge things at department stores and have a month to pay. One of the newest developments is the credit card, which has enjoyed a phenomenal rise in popularity and now accounts for 12 per cent of the total in the charge account classification. Ten years ago credit cards were only 5 per cent of the total.

If installment buying were halted tomorrow, the American economy would go into a tailspin and there would be a panic in the New York Stock Exchange. So merchants keep expanding installment credit and the consumers keep eating it up.

The risks for the merchant are surprisingly small. There are no accurate figures, but the Associated Credit Bureaus of America estimates the defaulters about 1½ per cent, with 2 percent as the absolute maximum. They are known to the credit men as "won't pays", in other words they have no intention of making the payments when they sign the sales contract.

If you are going to buy something on the installment plan, be prepared for a rigorous investigation. It is likely that your employer, your bank, your landlord and even your neighbors will be questioned. If you have been convicted of drunken driving or too many traffic offenses, things are going to be tougher for you. If you and your wife have had a spat and separated even for a brief time, the credit man is likely to look at you with a jaundiced eye. Your drinking habits weigh heavily. So will any extra-curricular amorous activity.

If you pass all these tests successfully, then the following factors will determine whether you get credit:

—How long have you been in your present job? The longer the better.

—What is your record for meeting payments in the past?

—How do the amount of the payments fit into your total income? What installment obligations do you have to other stores?

—How big a down payment are you prepared to make? The bigger the better.

—How many months do you want the installment contract to run? The fewer the better.

—How long have you lived in your present residence? Do you own it and, if so, is it mortgaged? If you rent, how much rent do you pay? How long is your lease?

Check Account Good

The best thing you can have is a regular checking account which has maintained a fair-sized balance over several years. The worst thing you can be is a "transient worker," moving frequently from job to job and city to city. Some credit bureaus classify taxicab drivers, longshoremen and bartenders as "Transient workers," although there must be thousands of men in all those jobs who are buying on the installment plan and meeting their payments promptly. Women who have been divorced or separated generally are looked upon with suspicion unless they can prove their financial responsibility. Alimony seems to be considered a precarious source of income.

Families with incomes of between $5,000 and $8,000 a year appear to be the most likely ones to indulge in installment buying. Farmers, as a class, do less of it than other categories of citizens.

Whatever his class and income, a person who goes in heavily for installment buying inevitably comes to be in agreement with this rueful couple by Ogden Nash:

"O money, money, money, I am not necessarily one of those who think thee holy,

"But I often stop to wonder how thou canst go out so fast and when thou comest in so slowly."

MORTGAGES UP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Installment debt, which now stands at $60 billion in the United States, is only one of many ways Americans spend their money.

The total long-term and short-term consumer debt is nearly $285 billion, according to the Federal Reserve Board. The largest item, $190 billion, is in home mortgages.

Farm Controls May Be Eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A member of the Senate Agriculture Committee predicts Congress next year will begin easing food production controls to allow farmers to grow more for shipment overseas to hungry nations.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is author of a bill, now pending before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which would permit farmers to raise more crops on more land. The surpluses, under his plan, would be used overseas.

President Johnson reportedly agrees in principle to the proposal.

"I've been told by high officials in the administration that the Pesident has on his desk, awaiting only his signature, orders to put into effect a program which goes at least part of the way toward what I have in mind," McGovern said.

Under his bill, Congress would provide $500 million annually to buy food for starving persons abroad, construct ports and facilities for distributing the U.S. produce in the underdeveloped countries and help them improve their farming methods.

The government now pays between $2.5 billion and $3 billion a year to farmers for agricultural programs aimed at reducing surpluses. McGovern quoted unidentified agriculture department "experts" as estimating it would be only 20-30 per cent more expensive to allow the crops to be grown, buy the products in the open market, and ship them overseas.

Birth Control Pill Analyzed

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A social scientist says that with widespread use of the birth control pill "sex has become recreational rather than productive and the whole basis of our morality has changed."

Others at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) at the University of California did not agree wholly, but none questioned the effectiveness of the pill nor the vast implications for change in the world social structure.

The speaker who called modern sex recreational was Martin B. Loeb, director of the School of Social Work at the University of Wisconsin.

Loeb said that despite the profound implications in world wide use of the pill, there is so far "little sense of revolution but simply the sense of progress that shocks grandparents, puzzles parents and intrigues children."

Scientists in Sunday's symposium on "Psychological Control in Conception and its Implications" expressed these views:

—In all medical history there has been no potent drug used regularly for many years by so many people.

—It has become socially acceptable to discuss the pill in mixed company, whereas open discussion of other methods of contraception are not acceptable.

—There is "on the distant horizon" possible genetic control that would prevent some diseases.

—Women may someday take a pill to get pregnant rather than vice versa.

—The time may come when "the Boss," as the employer of women, may have a say in family planning in order to facilitate the setting up of work schedules.
